

No Special Assembly Expected On New-Type Ohio Ballot

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 19—Governor Lausche is expected to declare formally and finally on his return to Ohio from the 42nd annual governors' conference that he will not call a special session of the legislature to amend the Ohio election laws.

The chief executive conferred yesterday with several governors in the plush and world-famous "Greenbrier" resort on the question of the office-type ballot, approved by Ohio voters as a constitutional amendment last November.

Lausche received solid support of his stand that a special session is not necessary, particularly from Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon and from Gov. Earl Warren of California.

The Oregon ballot, in use for more than three decades, is amazingly similar to the one Ohio must use for the first time in November. After a conference with McKay, Lausche stated:

"The description of the results Oregon has experienced shows that some of the fears expressed in Ohio are not justified.

"The office-type ballot does not produce splinter or independent candidates. It appears candidates of that type do not enter because generally they are hopelessly disregarded by the voters."

Lausche has been asked to call a special session to conform Ohio's election laws to the new constitutional amendment. Pressure has come from Secretary of State Charles F.

Sweeney and Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, and reportedly is being increased by two Ohio Democratic Party bosses—Hamilton County Chairman William Harlow and Montgomery County Chief Albert A. Horstman, former state boss and now Democratic national committeeman.

However, Lausche apparently has learned enough of the office-type ballot from some of the other 40 governors present at the conference to enable him to make up his mind not to call a session.

Governor McKay said independent candidates in Oregon may qualify either by petition or—even simpler—by nomination of a mass meeting of as few as 250 persons.

Nevertheless, he said, only once in recent history has an independent candidate been elected to a major state office. That was about 20 years ago when a Republican nominee died.

The GOP split on their choice and an independent then entered the field and won the office.

Governor Warren said that California has never had an independent elected, although the California ballot also is similar to the one Ohio will use.

However, Warren explained, the law in the West Coast state was purposely designed "to make it as easy as possible to enter a party primary and as difficult as possible to file as an independent."

He said only 60 signatures were necessary to qualify in a party primary.

Cold War Truce Is Detailed

'Paris Hearing Of 'Red Terms'

PARIS, June 19—French diplomatic circles reported today that Russia demands a halt to the rearmament of Western Europe among Soviet terms for a Cold War truce.

The unconfirmed reports add that Russia would not object to the maintenance of the North Atlantic Defense Pact as long as it is not backed up with arms.

The Russian peace offer supposedly was made through United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie and diplomatic channels and is said to cover almost the entire area of the far-flung Cold War.

Although details are scarce and unconfirmed, newsmen here learned from French diplomatic sources that the following may be some of the additional concessions and demands of the Russians:

1.—Elimination of the Chinese Nationalists from the United Nations and their replacement by the Communists. Acceptance of "Western aid in developing China, but with the Russian ruble as basic currency in China's foreign trade.

2.—Soviet participation in a peace treaty for Japan with a provision for what Russia calls "political freedom" for the Japanese.

3.—RUSSIAN AID in "pacifying" Indo-China, Malaya and Burma where Communist-aided rebellions are underway.

4.—Outlawing the use of atomic bombs with Russian cooperation in an international arrangement for developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

5.—Unification of Germany under the terms of the largely inoperative Potsdam agreement and the neutralization of the "new" Germany.

6.—Withdrawal of occupation troops from Germany.

7.—General reduction of arms and armed forces.

Navy's Flying Boats Set New Passenger Mark

SAN DIEGO, June 19—The Navy has added a new chapter in aviation history by transporting an entire company of Marine reservists from Hawaii to the United States in two huge flying boats.

One of the planes, the Caroline Mars, landed at San Diego at 10:38 a. m. Sunday with 129 passengers and a crew of 15, establishing a flying load record for the distance. The 2,300-mile trip from Honolulu took 14 hours, 18 minutes.

The previous record load was set by another Navy Mars flying boat in April, 1946, when 118 persons were flown from Honolulu to the Alameda, Cal., naval air station.

The second ship, the Hawaii Mars, set down in San Diego Bay at 1:53 p. m., after a brief stop at Alameda naval air station for refueling. Aboard were 105 Marines and a crew of 13.

The Marine reservists are members of Company D, 13th Infantry Battalion, stationed at Pearl Harbor—the only Marine Corps organized reserve outside the continental limits of the United States.

The men, most of whom never were away from the islands before, were brought to the mainland for a two-week training encampment at Camp Pendleton, big Marine Corps base near San Diego. The company is unique for the diversity of national extractions its members represent.

AFTER WINNING the second annual 1,500-mile "Powder-Puff Derby," Betty Haas, of Scarsdale, N. Y., waves to friends at West Palm Beach, Fla. Although she successfully flew from Montreal, Canada, to the Florida city, she landed without crossing the finish line. She quickly took off when informed of the error and flew her plane over the final marker.

CIGARET CUT IS KILLED

Truman Asks For New Tax Bill Soon In Congress

WASHINGTON, June 19—Congressional leaders conferred with President Truman today and reported that he is "very interested" in having Congress act on the tax bill before adjournment.

Both Senate Majority Leader Lucas, (D) Ill., and House Speaker Rayburn, (D) Tex., said the President's position on tax revision is unchanged—that excise tax cuts must be offset by higher estate and corporate levies.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, meanwhile, removed another threat to the bill's passage by reversing itself and killing a tax cut on "economy-brand" cigarettes it had previously voted.

The committee's action picked up $90 million a year in revenue and met the objections of its chairman, Rep. Doughton, (D) N. C., who had threatened to oppose the bill if the "discriminatory" tax cut remained in the measure.

Rayburn said he expects a tax measure to come out of committee this week and for the House to start consideration of it next Tuesday.

LUCAS AGREED also the Senate would take up a tax bill and act upon it before adjournment. Lucas said that he hopes for adjournment of Congress sometime during July, but the target date is still July 31. He said:

"We hope to get out and go home sometime in July, but we just don't know."

The committee previously had voted to reduce the tax on economy brand cigarettes from 7 cents to 4.9 cents a pack. Members re-

Mission Plane Feared Lost

MIAMI, June 19—The Coast Guard reported today that a twin-engine DC-3 passenger plane carrying 15 persons has been missing for 10 days on a flight from Miami to Venezuela.

The plane is owned by the New Tribes Mission of Chico, Cal., and its passenger list included three missionaries and five children who were en route to Maracaibo, Venezuela.

The DC-3 left Miami June 9, stopped at Majica and was later reported over the Venezuelan coast that night. No word from the craft has been heard since.

DELEGATION DUE BEFORE COUNCIL

Women's Club To Ask City Action On Traffic Control

Circleville city council will be reminded of an old and unsolved problem—traffic control—when it meets in regular session Tuesday night.

A letter from Circleville Business and Professional Women's Club pointing out the existence of the problem and suggesting action was mailed to the solons Saturday.

The club is particularly concerned over speeding on Court and Main streets, will send a delegation of members to council chamber Tuesday to find out what action council will take.

Traffic enforcement is an old topic in the chamber. It has been the subject of much oratory, few ordinances.

The club members will suggest the erection of signs at each end of the city clearly stating the speed limit and warning that the area is patrolled.

THEY WILL suggest that the limit be set at 25 miles per hour. One club member explained that the club recognizes this is too slow, but that if a 25 mile per hour sign is erected, motorists can be expected to exceed it by at least 10 miles "simply because they're human."

"On the other hand," the club member said, "if a sign giving the speed limit as 35 miles per hour is erected, motorists will go 40 or 45 miles per hour."

She added that some cars have been observed travelling north on Route 23 at speeds ranging from 50 to 60 miles per hour.

"They zoom along South Court street so fast that sometimes they can't even get stopped for the first traffic light," she declared.

And, the club member went on, the situation is the same on North Court street. Inquiries among North Court street residents have revealed that the problem of speeding traffic is equally bad in that end of town, she said.

THE CLUB will suggest that the three-wheel motorcycle be put on patrol duty at each end of the town, rather than being relegated to use for checking parking violations.

"The city probably would make more money from checking speeders than it does from parking violations if the three-wheel motorcycle were used for that purpose," a member said.

The club will offer to purchase the signs to be erected at each end of the city if council finds its funds low, and if the solons

Girls' State Opens In Columbus

Two Pickaway County girls—one from Circleville and one from New Holland—Monday were attending Buckeye Girls' State in Capital University.

The girls are Betty Lou Helwagen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Helwagen of 400 North Court street; and Virginia Dudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Dudson of New Holland.

Pickaway County's two delegates were among the 434 other Ohio high school girls seeking office Monday on the Columbus university campus.

Girls' State is an American Legion Auxiliary sponsored program, almost identical with the Boys' State program sponsored by the Legion.

The program consists of setting up mythical governmental offices in village, city and state with the delegates in office supervising the activities of the mythical municipalities.

Miss Helwagen is Circleville's first representative to the annual Girls' State program, while Miss Dudson is the fourth delegate sent to the program by New Holland Legion Auxiliary.

THE GIRLS, both seniors in their respective high schools, were selected as delegates by school officials. They arrived on the Capital university campus Sunday for registration and were to have begun campaigning Monday. Election of officers will be held Tuesday.

Chief Justice Carl Weygandt of the Ohio Supreme Court will speak during the inaugural dinner scheduled for Wednesday. Girls' State will continue until next Sunday.

Panels Approve Arms Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, June 19—Two Senate committees unanimously approved today the $1,222,500,000 arms aid bill in almost the exact form asked by President Truman.

Sen. Connally, (D) Tex., chairman of the combined foreign relations and armed services committees, announced the vote as 12 to 0 and said he hoped to bring the bill to the Senate floor for debate Thursday.

Mrs. Alice Adrian, a 52-year-old woman, was the first woman to be elected to the Senate floor for debate Thursday.

WEST COAST CIO longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges is stunned as he learns that his U. S. citizenship has been revoked by a federal district court in San Francisco. Bridges' attorney promptly filed notice of appeal and a motion for stay of execution. Arguments were set by court for Wednesday.

Vogeler Release Report Spiked In Budapest

VIENNA, June 19—An American diplomatic source in Budapest spiked reports today that negotiations had taken place with the Hungarian government for the release of American Businessman Robert A. Vogeler.

Vogeler, vice-president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Europe, was sentenced to 15 years in prison by a Hungarian Communist court when he pleaded guilty to espionage and sabotage charges.

The American source categorically denied that the Communist regime had expressed willingness to liberate the New York City resident. He said:

"We have never, nor are we now negotiating for Vogeler's release. It takes two parties to make an agreement. And so far, the Communist government has failed to reply to our request. We have been even unable to see Vogeler."

"So far as we are concerned, (Continued on Page Two)

Ruhr Voters Purge Commies

DUESSELDORF, June 19—Ruhr voters purged more than half the Communist members of the state parliament of North Rhine-Westphalia today by handing them a sound beating in a combined plebiscite and election.

Unofficial but complete returns from yesterday's balloting showed the Communist vote slashed in half and the number of Communist deputies reduced from 28 to 12.

The Christian Democrats remain the top party with 95 seats, followed by the Social Democrats with 68, the Free Democrats with 26, and the Catholic Center with 16.

Erickson Now Facing Term, Fine

Prosecutor Wants 'Stiffest Sentence'

NEW YORK, June 19—Frank Erickson, 54, ruler of a far-flung gambling empire, with an annual "take" estimated at $14 million a year, pleaded guilty today in court to an indictment charging bookmaking and conspiracy to violate gambling laws.

He was the first bigtime bookmaker to be brought to trial under the present nationwide crime investigation campaign.

The portly, round-faced, bald-headed and bland-looking Erickson stood before the bar as his attorney, Sol Gelb, announced:

"The defendant withdraws his plea of not guilty and pleads guilty."

Sitting on the bench was Justice Nathan D. Perlman and Presiding Justice John J. Bennett.

The fact that Bennett was sitting at Perlman's side was considered extraordinary and emphasized the importance with which the case is regarded.

In the courtroom was District Attorney Frank Hogan, who has been directing the investigation of Erickson and a battery of assistant district attorneys.

UNDER THE criminal information under which Erickson was charged, he faces a possible penalty of 60 years and a total fine of $30,000.

Although previously rumored that he would throw himself on the mercy of the court, Erickson's action came as a last-minute surprise inasmuch as his attorney only recently indicated he would fight the case.

Justice Perlman set June 26 for date of sentencing of Erickson "to take place before this court."

Erickson was called before the (Continued on Page Two)

Hereford Field Day Scheduled For Thursday

Pickaway County's Hereford growers this week were making last-minute plans for their field day scheduled for Thursday.

The second of two beef field days—the first was held last week by Aberdeen Angus promoters, the Hereford event is to be held on Pleasant View Farm, a mile east of Fox on Florence Chapel pike.

The program will start at 10:30 a. m. with FFA and 4-H Club judging contest. Show halsters and prize sticks will be awarded as prizes.

Herman Purdy, animal husbandry expert of Ohio State university, will define "Type of Hereford We Are Striving For Today" in an illustrated talk.

There will be a fitting and showing demonstration by 4-H club members and a showmanship contest for FFA and 4-H members.

Circle-Sew Straight 4-H Club will serve lunch at noon.

This field day is sponsored by the Pickaway County Hereford Breeders Association as a part of their program of "Better Cattle for Pickaway County."

bar of justice on a 60-count information—59 counts charging bookmaking and one of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws of other states.

District Attorney Hogan told the court he wanted a jail sentence of "the stiffest sort" for Erickson.

Hogan wanted Erickson remanded to jail at once, but after a debate between him and Gelb the defendant was allowed to remain at liberty pending his sentencing in court a week from today.

If Erickson had elected to stand trial, it was a foregone conclusion that the names of many prominent persons who have made wagers with Erickson, would have been drawn into the limelight.

Erickson recently testified before a Washington subcommittee investigating gambling that he handled $12.5 million a year in bets.

Erickson, who was once a busboy in a Coney Island restaurant, is reputed to be a wealthy man. He is conceded to be the biggest bookmaker in New York City and his operations have extended to other states.

One Car In Eight Found Faulty In Check Here

Only about one car in eight was found defective last Friday in a spot traffic check on South Court street.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said a total of 375 autos were checked during the test and only 47 were found defective.

"That's pretty good," boomed the patrolman. "Usually we have about one in five defective."

Wells said that the check showed that most of the defects were caused by faulty lights and brakes.

"A big defect on most of the commercial vehicles," said Wells, "was the lack of stop warning lights."

The check was staged by Wells and two other patrolmen, four Circleville police and one deputy from the sheriff's office.

City Jail Gets New Gas Heater

A new heating unit was being installed Monday in Circleville's city jail.

The new unit is an overhead gas blower installed in the aisleway between the two barred city cells.

The unit has been planned for some time to replace two old-fashioned gas grates installed in the cells. The old grates were said "dangerous," even though protected from the prisoners by steel laths.

Partisans Say Yank GI Shot OSS Officer

NOVARA, Italy, June 19—Two former Partisans told Italian authorities that a pair of American soldiers cut cards to determine which one would kill an OSS major who was on a secret mission in Italy during World War II.

Italian police said that the confessions of the two Partisans led to the discovery of the decomposed body of Maj. William Holohan—wrapped in a duffle bag—at the bottom of Lake Arpionato.

The U. S. War Department is receiving a full report on the case which it first asked Italian officials to investigate in 1945.

The two Partisans, Gualtiero Torrini and Giuseppe Mainini, are being held as accomplices in Holohan's death.

They said the Americans, identified only as "Lt. Icardi" and "Sgt. Lodolice," shot Holohan on Dec. 5, 1944, while he was in Italy on an assignment known as the "Chrysler Mission."

Holohan reportedly was carrying a large sum in gold and dollars for use on the mission.

The confessing Partisans said that after the major's death they helped to feign a mock German attack and spread the story that Holohan had been captured by SS troops.

Rent Control Bill Readied

WASHINGTON, June 19—Senate-House conferees agreed today on a compromise bill to extend federal rent controls for six months, with another six months at the option of the local community.

Truman Asks For New Tax Bill Soon In Congress

Several Democratic members were reported kicking over the traces and refusing to go along with administration leaders in raising the corporation tax a half-billion dollars or so a year.

AT A MEETING last week of majority members, it was emphasized that increasing the corporation tax provides the only remaining source of new revenue with which to balance the bill.

Members were warned again that if the bill comes out in its present form, with tax cuts excluded.

Xenia Girl Hurt In Crash At Intersection

A 7-year-old Xenia girl suffered minor injuries Sunday in a two-car crash at Routes 22 and 56.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards said the girl was a passenger in an auto driven west on Route 22 by her father, Ross Bateson, 38, of Xenia.

The deputy said the Bateson auto crashed into the rear of another auto headed west, driven by the Rev. Arthur Shenefelt, 30, of Long Island, N. Y.

Richards said the Shenefelt auto had stopped in the highway midway through the intersection, that the driver apparently had not seen the turnoff in time to swing off. The Bateson car, travelling behind the other car, was unable to pull around the stopped auto, Richards said, because of oncoming traffic.

The 7-year-old girl suffered face and head injuries, the deputy said.

Flames Rout Family Of 5

LONDON, June 19—A family of five is homeless today as the result of a $15,000 blaze which swept their seven-room farm home four miles northwest of London.

Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell and their three children fled from the burning house early yesterday morning when the blaze was discovered. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The Campbells took refuge in the homes of relatives and friends.

Firemen Called 3 Times Over Last Weekend

Circleville firemen were called at about 5 a. m. Monday to extinguish a minor blaze in Circleville Container Corp.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the fire was in the pit under one of the paper-making machines and that discarded paper had caught fire.

"Damage was relatively light," Wise said. "Cause for the fire was not determined."

The firemen were called at about 12:15 p. m. Monday to investigate a "smoke scare" at the office of Dr. Edwin Shane, West Franklin street.

The chief said that a woman had summoned the department when she mistakenly thought smoke was coming from the doctor's office.

A kitchen fire in the home of C. B. Lair, North Court street, was put out at about 3 p. m. Saturday by the firemen.

Chief Wise said that a pan of melting paraffin apparently had been forgotten as it melted on the kitchen stove. He estimated damage at from between $150 to $200.

Girl Scouts Set Special Service

An investiture service for Ashville Brownie and Girl Scouts will be held at 8 p. m. Friday in Ashville Lutheran church.

Participating troops are Brownie Troop 12 and Girl Scout Troop 16 of Ashville. Mrs. Herbert White of Columbus, will speak.

Mrs. White, a native of Denmark, will wear native costume and will speak on Denmark. Several members of the Brownies will be promoted to Girl Scout rank while members of the Girl Scouts will receive membership pins indicating the number of years in scouting. Several Pickaway County Girl Scout officials are expected to attend.

Cuban Commies Being Checked

WASHINGTON, June 19—Senate Judiciary Chairman McCarran, (D Nev.), announced today that his immigration subcommittee will investigate reports that Communists are using Cuba as an "easy stepping stone for entry into the United States."

McCarran revealed that the subcommittee has already conducted some on-the-ground probes into the situation. He said the group has information that there are about 250,000 Europeans now in Cuba and from 60,000 to 75,000 "known Communists" there.

Drunken Driver Heads Traffic Court Docket

A Columbus drunken driver headed the list of 12 persons arrested last weekend by Circleville police.

Jewett Facemyre, 24, of Columbus, was fined $100 and costs by Mayor Thurman I. Miller for drunken driving on North Court street. Facemyre was arrested by Officer Carl Thompson.

Lester Hoover, 33, of Waynesboro, Pa., was placed on $200 bond for grand jury action on an accusation of reckless operation.

Hoover pleaded innocent to an accusation that he operated a tractor-trailer outfit recklessly on Route 62. The accusation was made by Harry Rankin in mayor's court.

Wisty J. Consentino of Columbus was fined $10 and costs in mayor's court for passing in a non-passing zone on Route 23.

The affidavit, filed by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells, accused the Columbus man of passing the patrol car in the restricted zone.

Meanwhile, nine other persons were arrested over the weekend for violations ranging from drunken driving to operating without a driver's license. Most of the arrests were made because of intoxication, however.

According to City Solicitor George Gerhardt, state law sets the speed limit at 50 miles per hour on the open highway.

In closely builtup parts of a city, the limit is 25 miles per hour. A motorist must drop down to 20 miles per hour when passing a school, may step up to 35 miles per hour on state routes within the city and outside the closely builtup district.

The 35 mile-per-hour speed limit can be changed only with the permission of the state director of highways after a traffic investigation has been made, Gerhardt said.

North Court Closing Set For Water Fixup

Plans to close North Court street temporarily are being worked out by Circleville water department.

Manager Ervin Leist said the street will be closed for two or three days while a trench is dug across for the laying of a water line to Rosewood avenue. He said this will be done "either this week or next."

Laying of the line along Rosewood avenue will take about two weeks. Leist said 426 feet of six-inch water main and 642 feet of three-inch main will be installed. A fire hydrant also will be installed.

The water department manager reported that a shipment of approximately 2,000 feet of pipe has been received. After the Rosewood avenue job, the 930 feet remaining will be stored by the water department.

Leist said enough pipe is on hand to install the Rosewood avenue line plus a line to Ted Lewis Park. He said the park board may decide to have a new line installed. If so, it will eliminate the present line crossing Hargus Creek and going up to Scioto street.

The new line would provide water at the shelter house and for fountains near the baseball diamond.

bar of justice on a 60-count information—59 counts charging bookmaking and one of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws of other states.

District Attorney Hogan told the court he wanted a jail sentence of "the stiffest sort" for Erickson.

Hogan wanted Erickson remanded to jail at once, but after a debate between him and Gelb the defendant was allowed to remain at liberty pending his sentencing in court a week from today.

If Erickson had elected to stand trial, it was a foregone conclusion that the names of many prominent persons who have made wagers with Erickson, would have been drawn into the limelight.

Erickson recently testified before a Washington subcommittee investigating gambling that he handled $12.5 million a year in bets.

Erickson, who was once a busboy in a Coney Island restaurant, is reputed to be a wealthy man. He is conceded to be the biggest bookmaker in New York City and his operations have extended to other states.

One Car In Eight Found Faulty In Check Here

Only about one car in eight was found defective last Friday in a spot traffic check on South Court street.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said a total of 375 autos were checked during the test and only 47 were found defective.

"That's pretty good," boomed the patrolman. "Usually we have about one in five defective."

Wells said that the check showed that most of the defects were caused by faulty lights and brakes.

"A big defect on most of the commercial vehicles," said Wells, "was the lack of stop warning lights."

The check was staged by Wells and two other patrolmen, four Circleville police and one deputy from the sheriff's office.

City Jail Gets New Gas Heater

A new heating unit was being installed Monday in Circleville's city jail.

The new unit is an overhead gas blower installed in the aisleway between the two barred city cells.

The unit has been planned for some time to replace two old-fashioned gas grates installed in the cells. The old grates were said "dangerous," even though protected from the prisoners by steel laths.

Two redhot pottery kilns in Crooksville exploded and the plants were destroyed by fire while fire equipment was imprisoned by the flood. Several other pottery factories were ruined by the water.

A two-hour torrent poured into Black Fork Creek and burst over the Misco mine reservoir dam at Crooksville to inundate the homes and business section of 4,000 persons.

The water roared into the valley and rose to a level of 10 to 12 feet within half an hour's time.

Partisans Say Yank GI Shot OSS Officer

NOVARA, Italy, June 19—Two former Partisans told Italian authorities that a pair of American soldiers cut cards to determine which one would kill an OSS major who was on a secret mission in Italy during World War II.

Italian police said that the confessions of the two Partisans led to the discovery of the decomposed body of Maj. William Holohan—wrapped in a duffle bag—at the bottom of Lake Arpiato.

The U. S. War Department is receiving a full report on the case which it first asked Italian officials to investigate in 1945.

The two Partisans, Gualtiero Torrini and Giuseppe Mainini, are being held as accomplices in Holohan's death.

They said the Americans, identified only as "Lt. Icardi" and "Sgt. Lodolce," shot Holohan on Dec. 5, 1944, while he was in Italy on an assignment known as the "Chrysler Mission."

Holohan reportedly was carrying a large sum in gold and dollars for use on the mission.

The confessing Partisans said that after the major's death they helped to feign a mock German attack and spread the story that Holohan had been captured by SS troops.

Rent Control Bill Readied

WASHINGTON, June 19—Senate House conferees agreed today to a compromise bill to extend federal rent controls for six months, with another six months at the option of the local community.

The compromise is expected to receive quick congressional approval and to reach the White House in plenty of time for President Truman to sign it before June 30 when the present rent law expires.

Members were warned again that if the bill comes out in its present form, with tax cuts excluded.

Xenia Girl Hurt In Crash At Intersection

A 7-year-old Xenia girl suffered minor injuries Sunday in a two-car crash at Routes 22 and 56.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards said the girl was a passenger in an auto driven west on Route 22 by her father, Ross Bateson, 38, of Xenia.

The deputy said the Bateson auto crashed into the rear of another auto headed west, driven by the Rev. Arthur Shenefelt, 30, of Long Island, N. Y.

Richards said the Shenefelt auto had stopped in the highway midway through the intersection, that the driver apparently had not seen the turnoff in time to swing off. The Bateson car, traveling behind the other car, was unable to pull around the stopped auto, Richards said, because of oncoming traffic.

The 7-year-old girl suffered face and head injuries, the deputy said.

Flames Rout Family Of 5

LONDON, June 19—A family of five is homeless today as the result of a $15,000 blaze which swept their seven-room farm home four miles northwest of London.

Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell and their three children fled from the burning house early yesterday morning when the blaze was discovered. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The Campbells took refuge in the homes of relatives and friends.

ceeding new revenue proposals by about $500 million, President Truman will veto the measure.

At the meeting, a tentative agreement was believed reached to increase the corporation tax to 40 or 41 percent on larger corporations, while reducing it for smaller business firms.

Firemen Called 3 Times Over Last Weekend

Circleville firemen were called at about 5 a. m. Monday to extinguish a minor blaze in Circleville Container Corp.

Fire Chief Talmor Wise said the fire was in the pit under one of the paper-making machines and that discarded paper had caught fire.

"Damage was relatively light," Wise said. "Cause for the fire was not determined."

The firemen were called at about 12:15 p. m. Monday to investigate a "smoke scare" at the office of Dr. Edwin Shane, West Franklin street.

The chief said that a woman had summoned the department when she mistakenly thought smoke was coming from the doctor's office.

A kitchen fire in the home of C. B. Lair, North Court street, was put out at about 3 p. m. Saturday by the firemen.

Chief Wise said that a pan of melting paraffin apparently had been forgotten as it melted on the kitchen stove. He estimated damage at from between $150 to $200.

Girl Scouts Set Special Service

An investiture service for Ashville Brownie and Girl Scouts will be held at 8 p. m. Friday in Ashville Lutheran church.

Participating troops are Brownie Troop 12 and Girl Scout Troop 16 of Ashville. Mrs. Herbert White of Columbus, will speak.

Mrs. White, a native of Denmark, will wear native costume and will speak on Denmark. Several members of the Brownies will be promoted to Girl Scout rank while members of the Girl Scouts will receive membership pins indicating the number of years in scouting. Several Pickaway County Girl Scout officials are expected to attend.

Cuban Commies Being Checked

WASHINGTON, June 19—Senate Judiciary Chairman McCarran, (D) Nev., announced today that his immigration subcommittee will investigate reports that Communists are using Cuba as an "easy stepping stone for entry into the United States."

McCarran revealed that the subcommittee has already conducted some on-the-ground probes into the situation. He said the group has information that there are about 250,000 Europeans now in Cuba and from 60,000 to 75,000 "known Communists" there.

GOP Campaigner Looking For Winning Candidate

WASHINGTON, June 19—There are very fine job prospects ahead for any man who can qualify for leadership with the following attributes:

- (1) Emotional appeal (not to be confused with sex appeal).
- (2) Who can stir people's imaginations.
- (3) Who can discuss the issues of the day and stick to the point.
- (4) Who can offer a concrete program for ills, both national and international, and not just mere carping criticism.
- (5) Who is neither a "me, too" nor "I could do it better" guy.
- (6) Who is a practicing Republican.

The man with the above qualifications is the dream boat who can beat one Harry S. Truman to the reconstructed White House in 1952. In the opinion of Victor Johnson, director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Johnson is the character who first burst upon wide public consciousness several weeks ago when he scouted for the opposition (known locally as Republicans) the non-political, speech-making tour of President Truman through the West.

At that time, Johnson gained national fame as the first aerial gumshoe in political history. He tree-hopped in a fast plane from tank town to tank town to kibitz on the President as he hit the glory trail.

"I'm convinced a guy like that, with those qualifications (see above) can beat Truman," Johnson said.

"I DON'T KNOW who the man is," he hastily added, "but I

Spanish War Veterans Meet

COLUMBUS, June 19 — More than 500 Ohio Spanish American War veterans and members of their auxiliaries are in Columbus today for their 52nd annual encampment.

National Commander Henry W. Hunt of Connecticut and National Auxiliary President Grace Alexander of Arizona are visiting the Ohio sessions.

Department Commander Hugh F. Fiebig and Department President Elsie McCracken, both of Cleveland, also are on hand.

know the GOP can win with him in '52. The people aren't going to buy an old political hack two years from now no matter which party puts him up."

Johnson is a rare party himself, big and good-looking, with a round pink face crowned with a thick thatch of prematurely white hair. And for a Republican, he is quite merry and laughs a lot. No wonder, during the tour, that President Truman offered to let him ride aboard the presidential train. Johnson would be quite an addition to any party, including the Democratic.

However, he came back from his tour of aerial gumshoeing convinced that somewhere there breathes a Republican presidential possibility who can lick the spots off Mr. Truman. Despite the record crowds that turned out to greet the President, Johnson is of good Republican heart and undismayed.

"It's a lot too far in advance to forecast unqualified victory for Harry," he said, and he meant Mr. Truman. Johnson does not seem to be bothered by any doubt that the President will not run to succeed himself in '52, nor that the GOP will find some candidate to beat him.

Impressed with the certainty of a Republican in the White House some two years hence, Johnson is now dedicated to making the Senate safe for that future incumbency. He is devoting himself to the proposition that it is of vital importance for the Republicans to jerk several Senate seats out from under incumbent Democrats who are up for reelection next Fall.

Johnson thinks the key influence in the Fall elections will be the "hidden issue," described as a blend of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's charges of Communism in government, of the nation's frustrated desire for real peace, its fear of war and its present sense of insecurity at home and abroad.

"It all adds up to a deep emotional turmoil or bias on the part of voters that's hard to case," he diagnosed. "You can't tell how people in this condition may vote. Why anything can happen in the '50 elections!"

It could even happen to Republicans, to hear Johnson tell it.

Toledo Feeling Bread Shortage

TOLEDO, June 19—A shortage of bread became noticeable here today as a strike of AFL-Confectionery and Bakery Workers Union against four major bakeries entered its second day.

Spokesmen for both sides said, however, that there will be no famine of bread even if the strike should continue for some time.

The unionists are demanding 15 cents an hour increase and the Toledo Labor-Management-Citizens Committee has recommended the union settle for 10 cents an hour. The union turned down this recommendation, however, and picket lines were set up at all four plants.

GOP Campaigner Looking For Winning Candidate

WASHINGTON, June 19—There are very fine job prospects ahead for any man who can qualify for leadership with the following attributes:

- (1) Emotional appeal (not to be confused with sex appeal).
- (2) Who can stir people's imaginations.
- (3) Who can discuss the issues of the day and stick to the point.
- (4) Who can offer a concrete program for ills, both national and international, and not just mere carping criticism.
- (5) Who is neither a "me, too" nor "I could do it better" guy.
- (6) Who is a practicing Republican.

The man with the above qualifications is the dream boat who can beat one Harry S. Truman to the reconstructed White House in 1952, in the opinion of Victor Johnson, director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Johnson is the character who first burst upon wide public consciousness several weeks ago when he scouted for the opposition (known locally as Republicans) the non-political, speech-making tour of President Truman through the West.

At that time, Johnson gained national fame as the first aerial gumshoe in political history. He tree-hopped in a fast plane from tank town to tank town to kibitz on the President as he hit the glory trail.

"I'm convinced a guy like that, with those qualifications (see above) can beat Truman," Johnson said.

"I DON'T KNOW who the man is," he hastily added, "but I

Spanish War Veterans Meet

COLUMBUS, June 19 — More than 500 Ohio Spanish American War veterans and members of their auxiliaries are in Columbus today for their 52nd annual encampment.

National Commander Henry W. Hunt of Connecticut and National Auxiliary President Grace Alexander of Arizona are visiting the Ohio sessions.

Department Commander Hugh F. Fiebig and Department President—Elsie McCracken, both of Cleveland, also are on hand.

know the GOP can win with him in '52. The people aren't going to buy an old political hack two years from now no matter which party puts him up."

Johnson is a rare party himself, big and good-looking, with a round pink face crowned with a thick thatch of prematurely white hair. And for a Republican, he is quite merry and laughs a lot. No wonder, during the tour, that President Truman offered to let him ride aboard the presidential train. Johnson would be quite an addition to any party, including the Democratic.

However, he came back from his tour of aerial gumshoeing convinced that somewhere there breathes a Republican presidential possibility who can lick the spots off Mr. Truman. Despite the record crowds that turned out to greet the President, Johnson is of good Republican heart and undismayed.

"It's a lot too far in advance to forecast unqualified victory for Harry," he said, and he meant Mr. Truman. Johnson does not seem to be bothered by any doubt that the President will not run to succeed himself in '52, nor that the GOP will find some candidate to beat him.

Impressed with the certainty of a Republican in the White House some two years hence, Johnson is now dedicated to making the Senate safe for that future incumbency. He is devoting himself to the proposition that it is of vital importance for the Republicans to jerk several Senate seats out from under incumbent Democrats who are up for reelection next Fall.

Johnson thinks the key influence in the Fall elections will be the "hidden issue," described as a blend of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's charges of Communism in government, of the nation's frustrated desire for real peace, its fear of war and its present sense of insecurity at home and abroad.

"It all adds up to a deep emotional turmoil or bias on the part of voters that's hard to case," he diagnosed. "You can't tell how people in this condition may vote. Why anything can happen in the '50 elections!"

It could even happen to Republicans, to hear Johnson tell it.

Toledo Feeling Bread Shortage

TOLEDO, June 19—A shortage of bread became noticeable here today as a strike of AFL-Confectionery and Bakery Workers Union against four major bakeries entered its second day.

Spokesmen for both sides said, however, that there will be no famine of bread even if the strike should continue for some time.

The unionists are demanding 15 cents an hour increase and the Toledo Labor-Management-Citizens Committee has recommended the union settle for 10 cents an hour. The union turned down this recommendation, however, and picket lines were set up at all four plants.

Morticians Plan Code Of Ethics

CLEVELAND, June 19—More than 3,000 Ohio funeral directors may adopt an unprecedented code of ethics when they open their 70th annual convention here tomorrow.

Officers of the Ohio Funeral Directors Association, during a preliminary session, said the proposed manual of professional practice represents a five-year project drafted in three years.

8-County American Legion Convention To Be Held Here

2-Day Event To Start Saturday

Parade, Election To Top Program

Delegates from eight counties will assemble in Circleville Saturday and Sunday to attend the annual convention of the seventh district of the American Legion.

Delegates from all the American Legion posts in the district will elect the officers for the coming year. The same delegates will attend the state convention to be held in Cleveland, Aug. 5, 6 and 7.

Hall-Adkins Post will be hosts to next weekend's confab and is making extensive preparations to take care of the vast number of visitors from the eight counties.

On Saturday evening, a parade in the downtown area will be held honoring the district officers. Parade lineup will include the local police force, American Legion Drum Corp, cars bearing the candidates for officers and the present district officers, colors of the visiting posts and other local veteran groups.

Following the parade, a dance will be held in the Legion home, with a floor show composed of artists from the local American Legion auxiliary. Mrs. Melvin Thompson will present a series of costume dances and Mrs. Ralph Schumm will present a group of vocal solos accompanied by Mrs. Betty Goodman. Local Legion members and their families and guests are to attend.

THE CONVENTION proper will convene Sunday morning in the Post Room of Memorial Hall.

William Betts, commander of Hall-Adkins Post, has announced the names of official delegates elected by the post to attend the convention held in this city and also the state Convention.

They are E. C. Ebert, Robert Wallace, Mrs. Blanche Y. Mutschman, Reynold Greene and Betts. Alternates are Robert Grubb, Clark Martin, Gerald Melvin, Mark Coffland and Henry Imler.

Present district officers are E. E. McFarland of Portsmouth, commander; Kent Castor of Chillicothe, vice-commander; William McHarg of Lucasville, adjutant; and Mrs. Blanche Y. Mutschman of Circleville, chaplain.

Seeking the two top posts for the coming year are Castor for district commander and Mack Lilly of Ironton for vice-commander.

Betts has named the following persons to committees to prepare for the convention being held in this city:

Entertainment, Robert Wallace, chairman, Robert Grubb and Robert Liston; parade committee, John Simson, chairman; James P. Shea and Carl Radcliff; publicity, Reynold Greene and Robert Grubb; refreshments, Even Merriman, chairman, Mark Coffland, Jack Hatzto

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Why are some girls dated, others date-less? Sometimes the answer is simpler than you think. Two high schoolers write:

"We are 14 and considered rather attractive. But we never seem to get anywhere with the boys. There is a certain group in our school who run everything. It consists of about seven girls; they are very forward and flirty. We participate in school affairs and the boys are nice to us but that's all. We want dates like other girls, but don't want to go about it in a flirty way."

Ans.—Boys have a way of dating girls who already have dates instead of venturing on a date with a girl who dates only seldom or not at all. Unless they see girls with boys and definitely know that they date, most boys just don't seem to think of giving them a buzz. Probably that's what's happened to you. The boys see you only with other girls and simply don't think of you as a date possibility.

So it's up to you and your girl friend to start things by organizing a small picnic, hot dog roast, hay ride, or swimming party. Invite one or two other girls (not the flirty type, but good mixers), then invite an equal number of boys to go as guests, not in couples but all together. If you don't know enough boys, invite one and ask him to bring others. The girls should provide the food.

Or give a theater party for about three girls and three boys. You and your girl friends should buy the tickets in advance and give them to one of the boys to present at the entrance. All meet at your home, and perhaps return there afterwards for cookies and cold drinks. Next time a girls' club gives a dance, invite a boy... another method of helping to make dates come your way. When you see boys and Fred Boggs; reception, Betts, chairman, E. C. Ebert, Blanche Y. Mutschman, Gerald Melvin and Leonard Coffland; decorations, Blanche Y. Mutschman.

Hadacol Helps Wife Keep Her Family Well and Happy

HADACOL HELPS FOLKS SUFFERING FROM DEFICIENCY OF VITAMINS B₁, B₂, NIACIN AND IRON

Mrs. Edward H. Newton, 4364 Reading Road, Cincinnati, Ohio, feels that a wife's chief responsibility is attending to the welfare of her family at all times. HADACOL has been a big help to her in keeping her husband and little nephew well and happy.

Mrs. Newton's family, like so many, were suffering deficiencies Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

HADACOL brought such wonderful results to her husband, who had suffered from stomach distress that Mrs. Newton gave HADACOL to her three-year-old nephew, Bobby Newton, with equally gratifying results.

Mrs. Newton's Statement

Here is Mrs. Newton's statement: "I gave my little nephew HADACOL because he was pale, he had no appetite; he was run down and he caught colds repeatedly. After taking HADACOL, he has an appetite, has color in his cheeks and he is healthier all the way. My husband has always been troubled with his stomach. After taking five large bottles and three small bottles of HADACOL, he eats anything and is not bothered with his stomach." Mrs. Newton has recommended HADACOL to many of her friends.

Helps You Feel Wonderful!

Why not have a similar happy experience happen to you? Now don't keep putting it off—don't say that you'll start taking HADACOL tomorrow. START TAKING IT TODAY! If only you'd realize the wonderful benefits that people by the thousands are getting from HADACOL, you wouldn't delay a single minute.

Hundreds of Doctors

... have prescribed HADACOL for their patients, have requested quantities of HADACOL for their own clinical use and for their own families. The fact that HADACOL is scientifically formulated, compounded so that it contains therapeutic quantities of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron to supply deficiencies of these vital elements and is enriched with helpful amounts of Manganese, Calcium and Phosphorus (in liquid form), help to account for its increasing acceptance by doctors.

Wife Uses Car To Assault Mate

CALVERTON, N. Y., June 19 —A young mother of three children was charged today with assault of her estranged husband—using an automobile as a weapon.

Police said Mrs. Lorraine Rooney Duffy drove with her mother and three children to meet her husband, George, 32.

Mrs. Duffy parked the car and the couple talked over their problems until Duffy became angry and walked away. Then, police said, Mrs. Duffy started the car and ran into him, causing injuries to his hip and wrist.

Fireworks Ban Is Stressed

COLUMBUS, June 19 — State Industrial Relations Director Albert A. Woldman issued a warning today against the bootleg sale of fireworks, which are illegal in Ohio.

Woldman pointed out that illegal sales may bring fines to the seller of from $25 to $500, and that conviction of failure to comply with a "stop sale" order is punishable by a $10,000 fine and a year in jail.

He said at least 26 children in Ohio suffered serious injuries from fireworks last year.

Grange Says Farmers Need Equal Rights

ASHLAND, June 19 — Ohio State Grange Master Joseph W. Fichter declared last night that farmers must have equal bargaining power with business.

Speaking at the dedication ceremony for the home of Hanover Grange in Ashland County, Fichter declared that the high investment necessary to equip a farm is threatening the family-type farms.

"Ownership of homes and farms by the masses," Fichter said, "is one of the best ways to prevent the spread of Communism."

He explained, however, that the necessary investment of at least $10,000 to equip a farm

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT VALLEY FORGE?

On June 30, in the Valley between Joy and Misery, an onlooker will view with pride the historic site near the old iron forge—and a new forging.

Where the Revolutionary army camped at Valley Forge, 47,000 Boy Scouts will pitch tents at the National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America, observing the 40th Anniversary of Scouting in the United States.

Where an army of men suffered to win liberty, the Boy Scouts gather to strengthen it. Their Jamboree in the Valley between Mt. Joy and Mt. Misery is a modern forging of self-reliance and good citizenship.

The spirit of General Washington's army would join today's Americans in cheering what's happening at Valley Forge.

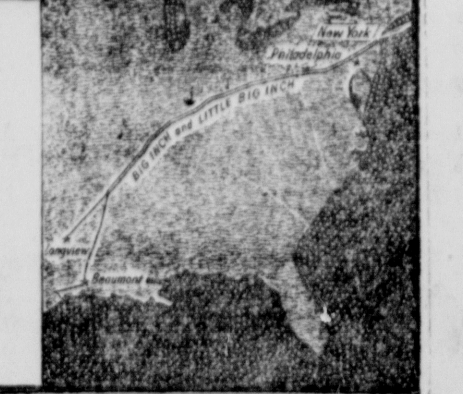

We at Texas Eastern have a special interest in the Boy Scouts' 40th Anniversary because Valley Forge lies close to the Inch Lines in Pennsylvania. Many of our sons, and those of our neighbors in communities along the pipe lines, will take part in the Jamboree. We wish them well on this patriotic adventure.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT VALLEY FORGE?

On June 30, in the Valley between Joy and Misery, an onlooker will view with pride the historic site near the old iron forge—and a new forging.

Where the Revolutionary army camped at Valley Forge, 47,000 Boy Scouts will pitch tents at the National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America, observing the 40th Anniversary of Scouting in the United States.

Where an army of men suffered to win liberty, the Boy Scouts gather to strengthen it. Their Jamboree is in the Valley between Mt. Joy and Mt. Misery is a modern forging of self-reliance and good citizenship.

The spirit of General Washington's army would join today's Americans in cheering what's happening at Valley Forge.

We at Texas Eastern have a special interest in the Boy Scouts' 40th Anniversary because Valley Forge lies close to the Inch Lines in Pennsylvania. Many of our sons, and those of our neighbors in communities along the pipe lines, will take part in the Jamboree. We wish them well on this patriotic adventure.

Movie Boss Says Future To Be Tough

Effect Of Video Being Outlined

HOLLYWOOD, June 19—Paramount Pictures President Barney Balaban, citing the "far-reaching influence" television will have on movie attendance, warned studio executives today that Paramount's "blueprint of the future" must be based on hard, cold reality.

He also cited lower gross incomes from domestic showings and loss of foreign markets as factors requiring Paramount to cut costs.

In a rather pessimistic vein, Balaban told delegates to Paramount's first major sales and distribution convention in 11 years that they must forget the lush years of the war and think once again in terms of 1941 and 1942. He observed:

"In 1946 the 50 top-grossing pictures released each produced a domestic gross ranging from $2.4 million to about $9 million. In 1950, on the basis of present available information, the 50 top-grossing pictures will turn in grosses ranging from $1.5 million to about $5 million."

Balaban also pointed out that the foreign film market has been hit, by the barring of pictures from countries "behind the Iron Curtain" and by devaluation of currencies.

Concerning television, Balaban said:

"It would be height of dangerous wishful thinking on our part if we blinded ourselves to the inevitable impact of a possible 20 or 30 million television sets upon the entertainment habits of the American public."

"TELEVISION is bound to exert a far-reaching influence upon our business. Its effects on motion pictures will have its 'pluses' and 'minuses.' At this time it is to early to add up the final score, but I am sure that when the time comes the prophets of doom will have been proved to be false profits."

One way to meet the threat of video, Balaban added, is to produce better pictures at lower costs.

"I am still firmly convinced," he said, "that the properly located and well-run American motion picture theatre is solidly established as an American institution and will continue to be our principal customer."

The Paramount chief warned that "the days of unfinished scripts and shooting a picture off the cuff must cease."

"These expensive practices are a luxury we cannot afford," he declared. "What we need today is the most careful analysis of scripts and the most exhaustive preparation for production before we start shooting."

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

Last Friday night on the way home from his weekly pinochle session, my Uncle Charlie was held up a few blocks from his home on Allen Street and a wallet containing $13 was taken from him. This misadventure, strangely enough, has made my Aunt Frieda very happy, and with your leave and license, I'd like to tell you why.

To begin with, to hear my uncle tell it, Frieda is crazy like a fox about most things, but when it comes to fortune telling and allied superstitions she's crazy like a crazy.

This, of course, in Charlie's own words, "drives him to destruction," particularly when my aunt shells out good money for such charms and amulets as lucky horse-tail hairs and pieces of string with seven magic knots.

"I can't understand," I once heard him tell her, "how a distinct twenty-century type like you could potsky around with such superstitions."

"Century, schmentury," Frieda answered. "What was good enough by my grandmother is good enough by me."

"So why didn't you marry your grandfather?"

"So when I look at you, that's who I'm thinking I married."

The matter came to a crisis last Friday when Charlie arrived home from the shop and Frieda asked him for ten dollars.

"Only last week I am giving you ten dollars," he exploded. "What you making, a down payment on a Cadillac?"

"A CATALOGUE I am not needing," Frieda sassed back. "Today I am purchasing from a certain Gypsy a brass fish with the sign from Zoroaster which is absolute guaranteed to make a party healthy, wealthy and wise, and also rich."

Charlie examined the brass object. "To me it looks like a tin herring," he said. "Where is living this Gypsy?"

"In the back of a store on Suffolk Street, and her I am trusting complete," said Frieda. "For instance, when Mrs. Feitelson was expecting, the Gypsy told her to sew up the stuffed derma with black thread for a boy and white thread for a girl, and when she used the black, you saw what happened—a boy."

"It occasional takes place," said my uncle patiently, "that a boy comes in the world without black thread in the stuffed derma."

The upshot of the argument was a decision to put the magical fish to a practical test, and when Charlie went out that night for his weekly pinochle session, the good-luck charm was in his wallet. If he lost, it was agreed Frieda would stop patronizing Gypsy establishments; if he made a killing, however, he was to have more faith in her theories.

Well, as it turned out, my uncle won ten dollars which, added to the three he started out with, gave him a take-home total of thirteen. Reluctant to face gloating Frieda, he took a round-about way home.

A few doors from a drugstore on Rivington Street, a hoodlum stepped out of an alley and stuck him up.

"COULD YOU return, please, the pocketbook?" said Charlie. "Is genuine alligator leather."

"Scram," said the hold-up man, "or I'll bust in your head."

"A pleasure," said my uncle politely. "Cherry-ho."

When Charlie got home, Frieda was considerably shaken by the story of the stick-up, and was forced to admit that the brass geegaw was a flop. But the next morning she gave my uncle the horse laugh when the mailman dropped off a small parcel with the wallet in it, its contents intact. There was also an unsigned note.

"Dear Mister—When I see you got the Fish of Zoroaster, I decide to send everything back because I have dealings with such fishes before and don't want no part of them. Besides, when I count up the money I find thirteen dollars exactly. I know when I'm licked."

"See?" said my aunt. "On account of the brass fish, everything is turning out hunky-tot-sy."

"Maybe," said my uncle, "but to me it still smells from herring."

God's Moral Law Held As Key To U. S. Government

CLEVELAND, June 19—Dr. Clarence Manion of the University of Notre Dame believes that God's moral laws comprise the foundation of American self-government.

Speaking before 750 delegates attending the final session of the Newman Club Federation's mid-century convention in Cleveland, Dr. Manion said:

"If man drives God out of the natural ordering of his life, the resulting vacuum will suck in a tyrant to take God's place."

The Notre Dame law school dean said that self-government means "the ability of the individual citizen to govern himself according to the moral law embodied in the Ten Commandments of God."

Bishop James E. Kearney of Rochester, N. Y., also addressed the meeting yesterday. Those attending the convention represented more than 300,000 young Catholic students in colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Ashville

Albert J. Kauber, former Ashville teacher and coach, has accepted the superintendency of the Pemberville schools in Wood county.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Cromley, Lon and Bill, and Mr. and Mrs. William Brodbeck attended the collegiate regatta at Marietta Saturday.

Special services in honor of Father's Day were held Sunday morning in the Evangelical United Brethren church with Prosecuting Attorney Guy G. Cline making the principal address. Special music was furnished by the newly-organized Youth Fellowship.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slagle of Washington C. H. were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Speakman.

Farmers' Cash Receipts Due For Decline

WASHINGTON, June 19—The government reports that farmers' cash receipts are running about nine percent under those of last year.

The Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics expects cash receipts for the first six months of 1950 to total $10.6 billion. That compares with more than $11.5 billion during the first half of 1949.

Farmers cash receipts in the first quarter of this year were down seven percent from a similar period in 1949 at $5.5 billion.

And during this quarter of 1950, the bureau says total cash receipts will be only slightly more than $5 billion, or 12 percent under a year earlier.

Finally, the bureau thinks that farmers will take one of the biggest socks on the cash receipt ledger during the present month. It believes June receipts will drop 14 percent below those of last June.

Jap Commies Lose Law Suit

TOKYO, June 19—A suit by Japan's Communist Party for an injunction against Gen. Douglas MacArthur's purge of 24 top Red leaders was thrown out of court today.

It was the first time any order by MacArthur or his Allied occupation headquarters had been challenged in the courts.

The suit asked for an injunction to block enforcement of MacArthur's recent directive to the Japanese government to purge all 24 members of the Communist Party's ruling central committee from all public activity.

It was denied by the Tokyo district court.

SUMMER SCHOOLS

TO MORE and more people, old and young, vacation has come to mean a time for study and improvement. All over the country, school is no sooner out than it opens again.

The student may make up credits, work toward a graduate degree, or merely broaden his chosen courses. The worker with a shorter vacation may seize this opportunity to study art, the drama or music. Intensive courses in foreign languages are offered by many schools, and writing institutes under the guidance of established writers are well attended.

Conditions in Summer schools are informal and rules are elastic. Serious work may be combined with sunning, swimming, tennis and golf, to the benefit of the body as well as of the mind. It is no wonder that going to school in hot weather has become an established American custom.

KILLING CAREERS

A POLITICAL career is full of hazards and shortens the life of its participants, according to Dr. George Calver, the Capitol physician in Washington. His figures show that three Senators and ten Representatives have died in little more than a year.

Causes of death were emotional strain, overeating, lack of physical exercise, and what he calls an unbalanced life. By the latter he means the absence of normal home life owing to the many social duties connected with these jobs.

Some of these factors might be mitigated if officials adopted a sensible regime and stuck to it. This procedure would require almost superhuman strength of character, and might lose friends and even votes for those who carried it out, but they would be more likely to stay alive. However devoted Senators and Representatives may be to the welfare of their country, it is doubtful whether they really wish to die for it.

TESTING WITNESS RIGHTS

THERE is much merit in the purpose of the House Committee on Un-American Activities to establish, by court tests, the nature of questions a committee witness may refuse to answer, and what he may be required to answer. A clear-cut definition of the point would be very valuable.

It is questionable, however, whether the Committee is using the best judgment in seeking the test through contempt citations against 39 Hawaiians who dodged questions in an inquiry into Communism. While we keep Hawaii in the status of a discontented dependency, mass prosecution for failure to answer questions is insult added to injury, and superb material for Communist propaganda.

Lewis May Order Brief Shutdown for 'Memorial' | Symington, Johnson Feud May Bring 'Fireworks'

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Don't be surprised if John L. Lewis hits the headlines again soon in a surprise move.

The Interior department recently issued a little-noticed report which said that only a score of United States coal mines are completely free of violation of the federal mine safety code.

Lewis may decide to dramatize this fact by ordering a brief "memorial" shutdown of the mines. The 1950-51 coal contract signed in March gives the United Mine Workers Union the right to call out its 470,000 members for five days a year as a memorial to miners killed or injured in the pits.

The coal market has slumped so badly Lewis might decide to exercise this contract weapon shortly. Some mines are working only a day or two a week.

● POWDER KEG—Verbal fireworks are expected as a result of the shift of Stuart Symington from Air secretary to chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

The dislike between Symington and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson was only thinly veiled during ceremonies in which Symington retired from the Air Force post.

Now Symington, reporting directly to President Truman, is in a position to criticize Johnson. NSRB is charged with planning best use of industry and manpower in case of emergency, and there are few military plans that do not affect one of these fields.

Symington's trouble with Johnson stemmed from his conviction that 70 air groups are essential to United States security. He publicly supported Johnson's 48-group "economy" plan, but was privately bitter.

These Days

I went to a dinner for Yukio Ozaki, who was born in 1859, which makes him 91 years old. I used to know him well, a quarter of a century ago. That given one a funny feeling, a sense of timelessness.

Ozaki flew from Japan to the United States and read a speech without having to wear eyeglasses. He would have done better had not a photographer insisted upon blowing off flash bulbs at him, but he took that more kindly than I have seen many do.

But it was a marvelous feat for an old man. It would be interesting to have Ozaki meet with our oldsters, Bernard Baruch, Jesse Jones, Herbert Hoover, William Randolph Hearst, to assay the age in which we now live compared to their great adventures.

Ozaki, like all Japanese who come to this country these days, praised General Douglas MacArthur and then pleaded that the United States should not abandon Japan. They fear no disaster as great as American withdrawal. He made a singularly interesting point—and one should remember that Ozaki represents a great liberal tradition in Japan—that if the United States abandoned Japan, it would become a second Korea, a torn and derelict country, helpless for decades before any conqueror.

Nearly all of us present at this dinner had lived in Japan at one time or another and knew the Japanese people and particularly this proud man who, in the span of his own life, had seen his country rise from feudalism and isolation to outstanding power and then fall through militaristic fallacies to the condition of a ward of the United States. It was as though someone in this country had lived from the administration of George Washington to that of Harry Truman. For Ozaki had witnessed the Meiji Revolution, although he had missed, by only a few years, the appearance of Commodore Perry in his black ships.

And yet there was a hopefulness about this patriarchal figure that one does not see in the youth of these days, who seem to be so hell-bent for security that they have lost all sense of adventure and youth.

Perhaps that is why the sponsors of the dinner invited a Harvard professor, Bruce Hopper, one of the world's greatest authorities on Russia, and also very knowledgeable in Far Eastern matter, to respond to Ozaki.

Hopper apparently does not think so well of Dean Acheson's "Total Diplomacy," of which it can be said, with truth, that it is neither total nor diplomacy.

So, Hopper proposes a Jujitsu Diplomacy—which is a very sensible proposal if you understand the art of making the other fellow's strength kill him. In Jujitsu, it is possible for a smaller and weaker man to knock out a bigger and stronger man by so arranging the holds that when the big fellow squirms he uses his own strength to knock himself out.

Now, that makes sense because if we adopted a foreign policy which pursued such a course, we should not have to appease everybody who blackmailed us, for matters large or small.

An Ailment Which Chiefly Affects Middle-Aged Women

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE is a severe form of bladder inflammation which chiefly affects the middle-aged women. It is known as interstitial cystitis. Though many thousands of cases occur and much careful study of the disorder has been made, its cause still eludes even expert investigators.

Usually it comes on only after several acute attacks of cystitis have occurred and subsided, and, once the interstitial form is established, it gives its victims a miserable time. The outstanding symptom is severe, and unremitting pain which allows the patient no rest either day or night. In addition, the bladder must be emptied frequently around the clock and the patient develops the symptom known as "urgency," which means that control of the bladder is partially lost.

Scar Tissue

In order to make a definite diagnosis, the doctor must inspect the walls of the bladder with an instrument called a cystoscope. By means of this lighted tube he is able to see the scar tissue and tiny bleeding cracks in the walls of the bladder which are so characteristic of this disease.

Various forms of treatment have been suggested. One method which seems helpful is to cut the scar tissue bands. This is done through the cystoscope using an electric cutting instrument.

Following this operation, the bladder should be washed with a silver nitrate solution each day. This treatment, of course, is best carried out in a hospital. Following discharge from the hospital, the same treatment is necessary twice a week for a month and then is gradually discontinued until the patient can go for two or three months or longer without treatment.

It has been found that this method often gives relief for from two to five years or even longer if it is properly carried out.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. D.: For almost a year I have been suffering with a dry throat. I wake up with a parched tongue. What would cause dryness of the throat?

Answer: Dryness of the throat may be due to infection of the mouth or throat, or to some deficiency in the secretion of the salivary gland. It may also result from severe anemia or lessening of the coloring of the blood.

A thorough study by your physician is needed to find the cause in your case.

● BATTLE OF FORMOSA—Behind America's warning to her citizens to get out of Formosa lies the private belief of top United States military strategists that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist army will meet eventual defeat if the Communists launch an invasion.

United States authorities do not expect the Communists to have an easy victory but they do not see how the Reds can be denied final triumph. In Formosa they see an Asiatic version of the "Battle of Britain" which never took place in 1939-40—that phase of the battle covering the expected invasion that Hitler never launched.

Washington experts believe the Chinese Reds—cocky and well-equipped—will learn from Hitler's failure and not hesitate long about an invasion attempt. Most British officials today admit that had Hitler invaded he probably would have conquered the islands after terrific slaughter.

In Asia the Red Air Force—Russian-equipped and trained—is growing and the United States Defense department fears that before many weeks the Hammer and Sickle will be hoisted to a bloody flagstaff on Formosa.

● VOLCANO—Disapproval by Congress of President Truman's reorganization plan to abolish the office of National Labor Relations Board Counsel Robert N. Denham hasn't done much to compose differences within the agency.

Although both sides insist that no personality is involved, there's strong evidence that Denham will find it difficult to work with the five-man board headed by Paul M. Herzog just as he has in the past. Publicly the general counsel and the board have expressed the hope that some way can be found to develop a modus vivendi. But as yet they haven't gotten together for a mutual airing of the problems involved.

The controversy extends many months into the past when the NLRB moved to new quarters. Herzog "cased" the building and picked out the plushiest suite of offices.

Denham, unable to find anything comparable, promptly had his suite redecorated—complete with shower and other accoutrements.

The battle was on. It has raged to the point where observers claim the basic issue revolves around sympathy for management on the part of Denham, and for labor on the part of the board.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

JOHN told Marilyn that Jeremy had had a slight nervous collapse. That she would be all right in a few days.

"Maybe if I'd gone over there when you asked me..." Marilyn said it remorsefully.

"It was a little late in suggesting it, Lyn." He spoke gently, it was somehow easier now to be gentle with Marilyn.

John returned to the problem of Jeremy a little abruptly. "Thing is to get her out of that room—it isn't much bigger than a cell and pretty drab."

She did not say, as he half expected, that it was no drabber than Jeremy, herself, and he went on, "You help me think of how we can get her away from there."

He had forgotten that they were to ask nothing of each other.

But the matter of moving Jeremy did not trouble him long. As they were finishing supper, Marilyn, passing the window, on her way to the kitchen, exclaimed, "Look at the grand car! Whose is it? John, it's stopping here! There's a man and a woman getting out! They don't look sick!"

"You're Doctor John Streeter?" asked the man at the door.

"Yes."

"I'm Ronald Penny. I had a letter from a Christopher Cameron—he lives here, I take it, though his letter was from Indianapolis. He made it quite imperative that I come up here and see my sister. But he told me to find you and talk to you first. Tell me, is she ill?"

His face, strained at the moment, with anxiety, was much like Jeremy's, finely molded and thin and sensitive.

"If you'll come into my office..."

The young woman with him spoke. "I'll stay here with Mrs. Streeter while you talk."

The two men came out from the office. Ronald said to his wife, "We're going to drive along to where Jeremy's living."

"I'll wait for you here."

John saw a look of complete understanding pass between them.

"That's where the kid's been teaching," Ronald Penny asked of the schoolhouse as they passed it. "I should have come a long time ago. Zhanya has told me I ought to, a lot of times. But I thought any day Jeremy'd snap out of her peeve. She walked out, you know, when I married Zhanya."

John went ahead into Jeremy's room. She was sitting up in bed, a tray on her knees, a little color in her face.

"Sleep?"

"Oh, yes. Until a half-hour ago."

"I've brought someone I think you'll be glad to see..."

She drew back into the pillows. "Not—not Mr. Cameron?"

"No. Your brother."

"Ronald?" Her face went white. "No, no..."

Ronald Penny came up to the bed. "What's the idea, Sis, of a greeting like that?" He took her two hands, gripped them. "Zhanya and I have been driving since six o'clock this morning to get here."

We figured your school term'd be most over and we'd pick you up and the three of us go on up to the Saguenay. We got the idea suddenly and there wasn't time to write. Now tell me I'm the person you'd most like to see and that you'll be packed and ready to push out with us, in a day or so..."

Jeremy's eyes, on their gripped hands while her brother was talking, lifted and went in agonized questioning to John. In answer John put one finger to his lips as a sign that he had kept his promise.

"Good morning!" Chris Cameron addressed it to Pete Smead, behind the letter boxes.

Pete swung around. "You're back here, eh?"

"Yes. I taxied over from Cranford late last evening. Any mail?"

Pete produced a bundle of mail. Chris took it. "What's happened that the mill is closed?"

Chris sat down. Pete Smead shifted a wad of tobacco in his mouth. "The men had a meeting, other night. Loren Matthews stood up and said for 'em all that not a one o' em'd work 'less the Forester fire fired that manager of hers. And she up and said she wouldn't. Said it spunky enough, and then she walked out of the mill next morning..."

"So it's a deadlock," observed Chris, frowning.

"Not a bit of it! There's more. Culbert had a bill of sale most signed when the girl up and balked on it. Said she wouldn't sign. She called a meeting of the men! At the Meeting House. She had Jesse ring the bell same as he always does and they all went. Meetin' House was packed. That lawyer of old Elisha's was there—he'd come up from Cranford. He spoke for the girl. He told the men Culbert had resigned, that he was out of the valley. Then he told 'em of the Bendley fellows wantin' to buy the valley and the girl refusin'. You could of heard the clapping up at your place, if you'd been there. And then the lawyer told 'em the mill was goin' open again under a new plan of management. A committee to advise the lawyer said. And there's talk that Loren's goin' to be put in Culbert's place."

Chris said, "Things certainly have been happening," and got up from the stool.

"Wait, boy! That ain't all! Last week the little schoolma'am was taken sick. Mary Abel thought she was dyin' and sent Tommie for the Doc..."

Chris sat down again abruptly.

"What was the matter?"

"Near as I know a sort of c'lapse. She's not much more'n skin and bones, anyway, and mebbe those kids, day in and day out, had wore her down. But Doc brought her to. And that evenin' a brother of hers come—a writin' chap. His wife along with him. They stayed at Annie Wilson's, three, four days—then they went along somewhere and the Penny girl with 'em. And Dave's home again; his hand as good as it ever was."

Chris laughed, drew his hand over his forehead. "Anything more?"

"Ain't that enough? Hope the news that took you out wasn't as bad as you thought 'twas."

"My uncle was very ill. But he pulled through and with good care he should live for some time longer."

Embarrassment suddenly altered the postmaster's manner of importance. "I've got to own up something to you, Cameron. That letter you gave me for Miss Forester—I put it in my pocket, remember? Well, 'twas my Sunday suit and I clean forgot it was there 'til yesterday when I stuck my hand in and there 'twas. I figured you'd be comin' any day and I'd hold it. Here 'tis!" Pete drew it from a pigeonhole and handed it over to Chris. "Hope 'twasn't important."

"It was and it wasn't," said Chris. He put it in his own pocket.

He ought tobacco, a loaf of bread and eggs and walked out of the store whistling. It was good to be back in the valley.

He slowed his step as he came abreast the Meeting House, picturing the meetings Pete Smead had described to him. He wished keenly he'd been at both, to hear Eliza speak, "spunky." Eliza belonged now. She had proven her right when she refused to sell the mill and the valley. Something had come to her, Pete had said.

Then, at sight of the schoolhouse his thought swung to Jeremy and his relief was for her. That letter he'd written at the Albany Airport while waiting for the plane going farther west had accomplished what he'd hoped it would. There hadn't been time to write it tactfully, and he hadn't been certain the brother would not take offense at it. He had written that Jeremy was in a critical emotional condition.

Well, the brother had come and Jeremy'd gone away with him. Streeter could tell him more of what Smead had called Jeremy's "clapse."

Pete the schoolhouse he came to the clearing in the trees, through which he could see the big house on the side of Spruce Hill. He waved a hand toward it. "You said you never wanted to see me again but you're going to, my dearest, this afternoon."

Hespeith said at luncheon, "Chris Cameron's back. He came into the store this morning. Louie told of it when he brought up the order."

Eliza had her tea cup in her hand. She put it down.

"He's missed all the excitement," observed Hespeith, with pride in her voice for the "excitement." "He'll likely come up to hear all about it."

But he wouldn't, Eliza told herself. His going away without a word to her, without trying to see her, was proof that he had accepted her dismissal. "I never want to see you again!"

And there was so much, so much she longed to share with him.

Try, Stop Me

For a supreme example of courtesy I give you the story of a wealthy Chinese gentleman who occasionally entertained American visitors in his sumptuous Shanghai home before it was engulfed by the all-conquering Red Armies. Before taking two important American business men in to dinner, he showed them his prize possession—a Ming horse, some five feet high, in exquisite detail, wrought centuries ago by a master craftsman.

"There are only four of these left in all the world," he explained proudly. "Even the experts cannot gauge its present-day value. Nothing possibly could induce me to part with it."

At dinner, unfortunately, one of the Americans got exceedingly drunk, and more unfortunate still, insisted upon mounting the Ming horse when he left the table. Before his horrified companion could stop him, he flung one leg over the priceless relic, slipped, and crashed to the floor with the porcelain splintering into a thousand pieces around him.

The Chinese gentleman merely sighed, and stooped to help the drunken American to his feet. "Do not trouble yourself about this mishap," he said gravely. "It makes the three remaining specimens that much more valuable."

He retired in 1867, investing his fortune in real estate and its improvement. The great Chicago fire of 1871 wiped him out, but he built a large hotel and other buildings and again accumulated a large fortune. His beautiful wife was president of the board of lady managers of the World's Columbian exposition of 1893. He died in 1902. What was his name?

2—He was probably born at Turnberry, Ayrshire, Scotland, July 11, 1274. He is said to have spent his youth at the court of the English king, but when Sir William Wallace, Scottish hero, raised his standard, our hero joined him, harrying the English forces. After Wallace's execution, he began his long, hard-fought contest with England. At one time things looked pretty dark for the Scots, and there is a legend—put into rhyme—about his despair of success, and how watching a spider persist in spinning a web after several unsuccessful tries, he was encouraged to try again, and finally defeated the English. He was made king of Scotland. He died on July 12, 1329. His body was buried at Dumferline, but his heart at Melrose. Who was this Scottish hero?

SUMMER SCHOOLS

TO MORE and more people, old and young, vacation has come to mean a time for study and improvement. All over the country, school is no sooner out than it opens again.

The student may make up credits, work toward a graduate degree, or merely broaden his chosen courses. The worker with a shorter vacation may seize this opportunity to study art, the drama or music. Intensive courses in foreign languages are offered by many schools, and writing institutes under the guidance of established writers are well attended.

Conditions in Summer schools are informal and rules are elastic. Serious work may be combined with sunning, swimming, tennis and golf, to the benefit of the body as well as of the mind. It is no wonder that going to school in hot weather has become an established American custom.

But the fellow down in Virginia who has 20 children issued a brief statement. It just read "HELP!"

Now we've had "Mother's Day," "Father's Day" and "Old Maids Day" . . . next comes Bachelors Night.

Some say "every day should be Father's Day," but he says he couldn't afford it.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
JOHN told Marilyn that Jeremy had had a slight nervous collapse. That she would be all right in a few days.

"Maybe if I'd gone over there when you asked me . . ." Marilyn said it remorsefully.

"I was a little late in suggesting it, Lyn." He spoke gently; it was somehow easier now to be gentle with Marilyn.

John returned to the problem of Jeremy a little abruptly. "Thing is a sign that out of that room—it isn't much bigger than a cell and pretty drab."

She did not say, as he had expected, that it was no drabber than Jeremy, herself, and he went on, "You help me think of how we can get her away from there."

He had forgotten that they were to ask nothing of each other.

But the matter of moving Jeremy did not trouble him long. As they were finishing supper, Marilyn, passing the window, on her way to the icebox, exclaimed, "Look at the grand car! Whose is it? John, it's stopping here!"

There's a man and a woman getting out! They don't look sick!"

"You're Doctor John Streeter?" asked the man at the door.

"Yes."

"I'm Ronald Penny. I had a letter from a Christopher Cameron—he lives here, I take it, though his letter was from Indianapolis. He made it quite imperative that I come up here and see my sister. But he told me to find you and talk to you first. Tell me, is she ill?"

His face, strained at the moment, with anxiety, was much like Jeremy's, finely molded and thin and sensitive.

"If you'll come into my office . . ."

The young woman with him spoke. "I'll stay here with Mrs. Streeter while you two talk."

The two men came out from the office. Ronald said to his wife, "We're going to drive along to where Jeremy's living."

"I'll wait for you here."

John saw a look of complete understanding pass between them.

"That where the kid's been teaching?" Ronald Penny asked of the schoolhouse as they passed it. "I should have come a long time ago. Zhanya has told me I ought to, a lot of times. But I thought any day Jeremy'd snap out of her peevish."

She walked out, you know, when I married Zhanya."

John went ahead into Jeremy's room. She was sitting up in bed, a tray on her knees, a little color in her face.

"Sleep?"

"Oh, yes. Until a half-hour ago."

"I've brought someone I think you'll be glad to see . . ."

She drew back into the pillows. "Not—Mr. Cameron?"

"No. Your brother."

"Ronald?" Her face went white. "No, no . . ."

Ronald Penny came up to the bed. "What's the idea, Sis, of a greeting like that?"

He took her two hands, gripped them. "Zhanya and I have been driving since six o'clock this morning to get here."

We figured your school term'd be most over and we'd pick you up and the three of us go on up to the Saguenay. We got the idea suddenly and there wasn't time to write. Now tell me I'm the person you'd most like to see and that you'll be packed and ready to push out with us, in a day or so . . ."

Jeremy's eyes, on their gripped hands while her brother was talking, lifted and went in agonized questioning to John. In answer John put one finger to his lips as a sign that he had kept his promise.

"Good morning!" Chris Cameron addressed it to Pete Smead, behind the letter boxes.

Pete swung around. "You're back here, eh?"

"Yes. I taxied over from Cranford late last evening. Any mail?"

Pete produced a bundle of mail. Chris took it. "What's happened that the mill is closed?"

Chris sat down. Pete Smead shifted a was of tobacco in his mouth. "The men had a meetin' other night. Loren Matthews stood up and said for 'em all that not a one o' 'em'd work less the Forrestal girl fired that manager of hers. And she up and said she wouldn't. Said it spunky enough, and then she walked out of the mill next morning . . ."

"So it's a deadlock," observed Chris, frowning.

"Not a bit of it! There's more. Culbert had a bill of sale most signed when the girl up and balked on it. Said she wouldn't sell. She called a meetin' of the men! At the Meeting House. She had Jesse ring the bell same as he always does and they all went. Meetin' House was packed. That lawyer of old Eliza's was there—he'd come up from Cranford. He spoke for the girl. He told the men Culbert had resigned, that he was out of the valley. Then he told 'em of the Bendley fellows wantin' to buy the valley and the girl refused."

You could of heard the clapping up at your place, if you'd been there. And then the lawyer told 'em the mill was goin' open again under a new plan of management. A committee to advise, the lawyer said. And there's talk that Loren's going to be put in Culbert's place."

Chris said, "Things certainly have been happening," and got up from the stool.

"Wait, boy! That ain't all! Last week the little schoolma'am was taken sick. Mary Abel thought she was dyin' and sent Tommie for the Doc . . ."

Chris sat down again abruptly. "What was the matter?"

"Near as I know a sort of clapse. She's not much more'n skin and bones, anyway, and mebbe those kids, day in and day out, had wore her down. But Doc brought her to. And that evenin' a brother of hers come—a writin' chap. His wife along with him. They stayed at Annie Wilson's, three, four days—then they went along somewhere and the Penny girl with 'em. And Dave's home again; his hand as good as it ever was."

Chris said, "That's all right. I'll be home soon."

Chris said, "That's all right. I'll be home soon."

Chris said, "That's all right. I'll be home soon."

Chris said, "That's all right. I'll be home soon."

Chris laughed, drew his hand over his forehead. "Anything more?"

"Ain't that enough? Hope the news that took you out wasn't as bad as you thought 'twas."

"My uncle was very ill. But he pulled through and with good care he should live for some time longer."

Embarrassment suddenly altered the postmaster's manner of importance. "I've got to own up something to you, Cameron. That letter you gave me for Miss Forrestal—I put it in my pocket, remember? Well, 'twas my Sunday suit and I clean forgot it was there 'til yesterday when I stuck my hand in and there 'twas. I figured you'd be comin' any day and I'd hold it. Here 'tis!" Pete drew it from a pigeonhole and handed it over to Chris. "Hope 'twasn't important."

"It was and it wasn't," said Chris. He put it in his own pocket. He ought tobacco, a loaf of bread and eggs and walked out of the store whistling. It was good to be back in the valley.

He slowed his step as he came abreast the Meeting House, picturing the meetings Pete Smead had described to him. He wished keenly he'd been at both, to hear Eliza speak, "spunky." Eliza belonged now. She had proven her right when she refused to sell the mill and the valley. Something had come to her, Pete had said.

Then, at sight of the schoolhouse his thought swung to Jeremy and his relief was for her. That letter he'd written at the Albany Airport while waiting for the plane going farther west had accomplished what he'd hoped it would. There hadn't been time to write it tactfully, and he hadn't been certain the brother would not take offense at it. He had written that Jeremy was in a critical emotional condition.

Well, the brother had come and Jeremy'd gone away with him. Streeter could tell him more of what Smead had called Jeremy's "clapse."

Past the schoolhouse he came to the clearing in the trees, through which he could see the big house on the side of Spruce Hill. He waved a hand toward it. "You said you never wanted to see me again but you're going to, my dearest, this afternoon."

Hespereth said at luncheon, "Chris Cameron's back. He came in the store this morning. Louise told of it when he brought up the order."

Eliza had her tea cup in her hand. She put it down.

"He's missed all the excitement," observed Hespereth, with pride in her voice for the "excitement." "He'll likely come up to hear all about it."

But he wouldn't, Eliza told herself. His going away without a word to her, without trying to see her, was proof that he had accepted her dismissal. "I never want to see you again!"

And there was so much, so much she longed to share with him.

Try, Stop Me

For a supreme example of courtesy I give you the story of a wealthy Chinese gentleman who occasionally entertained American visitors in his sumptuous Shanghai home before it was engulfed by the all-conquering Red Armies. Before taking two important American business men in to dinner, he showed them his prize possession—a Ming horse, some five feet high, in exquisite detail, wrought centuries ago by a master craftsman.

"There are only four of these left in all the world," he explained proudly. "Even the experts cannot gauge its present-day value. Nothing possibly could induce me to part with it."

At dinner, unfortunately, one of the Americans got exceedingly drunk, and more unfortunately still, insisted upon mounting the Ming horse when he left the table. Before his horrified companion could stop him, he flung one leg over the priceless relic, slipped, and crashed to the floor with the porcelain splintering into a thousand pieces around him.

The Chinese gentleman merely sighed, and stooped to help the drunken American to his feet. "Do not trouble yourself about this mishap," he said gravely. "It makes the three remaining specimens that much more valuable."

Kingston Church Scene Of Saturday Wedding Of Miss Carol Lee Francis

Pair To Live In Middletown
Kingston Methodist church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Carol Lee Francis and Richard D. Williams Saturday afternoon.

White gladioli, ferns and tapers in seven branched candelabras formed the background of the altar before which the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Elkjer.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Francis of Kingston, was escorted down the aisle and given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Williams of Fairfield, Iowa.

The bride wore a gown of white organdy with lace insets and train. Her fingertip veil was of imported illusion. The flowers she carried were shattered carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Jane Francis, maid-of-honor and sister of the bride; Miss Rose Marie Francis, junior bride's maid, another sister; Miss Ruth Rigdon of Dayton and Miss Jean Williams of Fairfield, Iowa, sister of the bridegroom were all in hoopskirted frocks of blue, yellow, pink and orchid. Their picture hats and mitts were of matching color, their bouquets of colonial design.

Best man was Robert Waters of Columbus. Ushers, fraternity brothers of the bridegroom, were Fred White of Delaware and Al Staff of Cleveland.

Vocalist Glenn Uhl of Mentor, accompanied by Miss Maxine Weinrich, organist, sang the nuptial songs preceding the ceremony.

At the reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Francis, flowers had been arranged by members of Mt. Pleasant Garden Club. Mrs. Francis received her guests in a dress of navy blue sheer wearing a corsage of pink rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother was in a toast lace gown with brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

A three-tier wedding cake surrounded by greenery and roses centered the table. Assisting in the dining room were close friends of the bride, Mrs. Joseph Hoyt, Miss Jane Bennett of Kingston and Miss Sondra Rues of Sidney, a sorority sister.

For her wedding trip to Cape Cod, Mass., the bride changed to a linen suit of hunter's green, with white accessories.

The new Mrs. Williams is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and Northwestern universities and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He is employed in the industrial relations department of a Middletown firm.

The couple will reside at 120 North Broad street, Middletown.

Kingston Church Scene Of Saturday Wedding Of Miss Carol Lee Francis

Pair To Live In Middletown

Kingston Methodist church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Carol Lee Francis and Richard D. Williams Saturday afternoon.

White gladioli, ferns and tapers in seven branched candelabras formed the background of the altar before which the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Eljker.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Francis of Kingston, was escorted down the aisle and given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Williams of Fairfield, Iowa.

The bride wore a gown of white organza with lace insets and train. Her fingertip veil was of imported illusion. The flowers she carried were shattered carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Jane Francis, maid-of-honor and sister of the bride; Miss Rose Marie Francis, junior bridesmaid, another sister; Miss Ruth Rigdon of Dayton and Miss Jean Williams of Fairfield, Iowa, sister of the bridegroom were all in hoopskirted frocks of blue, yellow, pink and orchid. Their picture hats and mitts were of matching color, their bouquets of colonial design.

Best man was Robert Waters of Columbus. Ushers, fraternity brothers of the bridegroom, were Fred White of Delaware and Al Staff of Cleveland.

Vocalist Glenn Uhl of Mentor, accompanied by Miss Maxine Weinrich, organist, sang the nuptial songs preceding the ceremony.

At the reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Francis, flowers had been arranged by members of Mt. Pleasant Garden Club. Mrs. Francis received her guests in a dress of navy blue sheer wearing a corsage of pink rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother was in a toast lace gown with brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

A three-tier wedding cake surrounded by greenery and roses centered the table. Assisting in the dining room were close friends of the bride, Mrs. Joseph Hoyt, Miss Jane Bennett of Kingston and Miss Sandra Ruess of Sidney, a sorority sister.

For her wedding trip to Cape Cod, Mass., the bride changed to a linen suit of hunter's green, with white accessories.

The new Mrs. Williams is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and Northwestern universities and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He is employed in the industrial relations department of a Middletown firm.

The couple will reside at 120 North Broad street, Middletown.

Wanda Happenny Is Married In Sunday Rites

Red roses on a white prayer book were carried by Miss Wanda Happenny at the wedding ceremony when she was married to Leon Brumfield late Sunday afternoon in First Evangelical United Brethren church. She wore a white satin bridal gown featuring pearl embroidery at the neckline, long tight sleeves and a full skirt with long circular train.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Happenny, she was escorted down the aisle by her uncle, Roy Starkey, who gave her in marriage. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Brumfield of Pickaway Township.

Decorating the altar were arrangements of red roses, lilies and sweetpeas intermingled with ferns. The Rev. Carl Wilson officiating at the wedding service.

Miss Patricia Happenny was maid-of-honor for her sister. She wore a yellow marquisette dress gown.

Herschel Brumfield served as best man for his brother.

Wedding music was provided by Clarence Radcliffe, vocalist, who sang "I Love You Truly," "Together" and "Lord's Prayer." The accompanist was Patricia Nau.

At the wedding reception held in the Pickaway Township home of the bridegroom, a tiered wedding cake centered the buffet table where guests were served. The cake had been baked and decorated by the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Edwin Brumfield.

The bride attended Circleville high school. The bridegroom is a graduate of Saltcreek high

Silver Wedding Observed By Tarlton Couple

The silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hedges of Tarlton was celebrated at a party given in their home Sunday.

Receiving guests with Mr. and Mrs. Hedges were their four sons, Samuel, William, Darrell and Dean, and two daughters-in-law, Mrs. William Hedges and Mrs. Samuel Hedges.

Mrs. Hedges wore a navy blue and white print for the occasion with a corsage of white carnations. The Hedges were married June 15, 1925.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a table centered with a three-tier anniversary cake topped with a silver wedding bell. Vases of roses and white tapers in crystal candleholders were placed on either side of the cake.

Pouring the coffee was Mrs. Edwin Mack of Dayton.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lehman Pritchard, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pritchard and family, Miss Pauline Roese of the Ashville community; Edwin Mack and son Don, Mrs. Adeline Huber and daughter, Goldie of Dayton; Mrs. Della Radcliff of New Carlisle; Mr. and Mrs. George Radcliff and daughters of Chillicothe; Mrs. Don Runkle, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brown and son of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Radcliff and children of Troy; Mrs. Letty Faust, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas and children of Columbus; Mrs. Eva Hedges, Gilbert Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strous and son, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Reichelderfer and family of Saltcreek community; Mr. and Mrs. Clydus Fausnaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hedges of Circleville.

CHIANG'S LAST STAND

Nationalist Navy Ready To Block Red Landings

KAHSIUNG, Formosa, June 19—The Chinese navy is confident it can keep shipping out of Shanghai even though it has lost its main blockade bases in the Chusan Islands.

The navy will continue to keep its biggest ships—destroyers and destroyer escorts—off the mouth of the Yangtze and will increase mining operations to offset any loss of effectiveness that may result from the evacuation of the Chusans.

Smaller vessels, such as gunboats, will continue patrols to keep shipping out of Amoy, Foochow and other ports south of Shanghai so that the Communists will not be able to break through the blockade which has hurt them so much during the last year.

Rear Admiral John Ma, chief-of-staff of the Nationalist navy, explained:

"Loss of the bases in the Chu-

sans means we will have to send our ships longer distances to close Shanghai to shipping, but that should not reduce our effectiveness.

"Our orders are to keep the Yangtze closed. We will do everything possible to comply. It is quite likely we will increase our mining operations."

Ma said the main job of the navy right now is to keep the mainland ports closed, protect troops on Quemoy and the few other islands where Nationalist garrisons still remain, patrol the Formosan Straits, train commando units for hit-and-run raids on the mainland and develop tactics to meet the anticipated Communist attack by several thousand junks.

"THE COMMUNISTS," Ma said, "can get together a few thousand junks easily."

"I disagree with those who say the Communists don't have the necessary equipment and shipping to try to invade Formosa. They have merchantmen, motor boats and also have put motors in many junks."

"They could use these junks in place of regular amphibious assault craft."

"Right now our naval headquarters is studying new tactics to fight great masses of junks. We will have to develop new tactics if we are to have success in combating several thousand of them."

"Each junk can carry about 40 soldiers. With motors, the junks could cross the straits in seven to 10 hours at the narrowest point. That is the 80-mile stretch between Foochow and Tamsui, on our northern beach."

The navy is concerned, too, about possible Russian aid to the Communist navy.

Ma said submarines have been sighted, but not identified, off the east coast of Formosa twice. There is no naval base in the area in which the subs were sighted, Ma said, but the subs surfaced on a well-traveled shipping lane.

Commerce Department officials and a spokesman for the American Newspaper Publishers Association were the main witnesses listed for the initial session.

Celler also plans to produce several "surprise" witnesses during the course of the hearing.

The New Yorker pointed out that many of the records on newsprint operations are in Canada, which precludes any subpoena action but that several Canadian witnesses have agreed to testify before his group.

Celler also reported that his investigators have found documents indicating that American and Canadian firms entered into price-fixing agreements in pre-war years. He said the papers will be made public during the inquiry.

CELLER DECLARED that there is "strong evidence" that an international cartel organization has been in operation in the newsprint field and that loopholes in the anti-trust laws may be required to curb monopolistic practices.

In addition, the inquiry will seek to establish facts concerning what Celler terms "a gray market" where small publishers pay as much as $150 a ton for newsprint.

The committee will also explore the possibility of developing additional American sources of newsprint supply both in Alaska and in the South.

Top GOPsters Not Sure About 'McCarthyism'

WHITE SULPHUR Springs, W. Va., June 19—Leading Republican governors today are on both sides of the question of whether the "rough 'em up" McCarthy technique is the right way to fight Communism.

The issue came up at the annual governors' conference.

Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania took polite verbal pokes at the methods used by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., in his sweeping charges of Communist infiltration in government.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of

New York, on his way out of political office at least for the foreseeable future, told reporters his reaction to "McCarthyism" was "mixed."

But there were indications that the defeated presidential candidate would wink at the Wisconsin senator's methods if it produced results.

The three top-ranking Republicans are among the more than 40 governors attending the 42nd annual conference at this lush mountain resort.

Business sessions got underway today with panel discussions of state government reorganization and water resources. Gov. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican, welcomed the members as chairman of the conference. Gov. Okey L. Patteson of West Virginia did the honors as host.

Dewey, 48, Seen Claiming Title As New GOP 'Elder Statesman'

WASHINGTON, June 19—National Observers today expect 48-year-old Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to seek the role of GOP "elder statesman" in order to have a hand in naming the Republican presidential nominee in 1952.

Dewey's Saturday announcement that he would not seek reelection as governor of New York was coupled with a declaration that he will "remain active in public affairs."

Great significance is attached to the fact that his two staunchest supporters immediately announced for the nomination of Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, 70, for the governorship. This was taken to indicate Dewey intends to remain as titular leader of the Republican Party in New York as well as in the nation.

Dewey's hand-picked state chairman, Rep. William L. Pfeiffer, will manage Hanley's campaign for nomination and election. Dewey's personal choice for GOP national committeeman, J. Russell Sprague, also endorsed Hanley. It looks as though Dewey hopes to control the powerful New York delegation to the GOP presidential convention in 1952.

WITH THE NEW York delegates behind him, Dewey could prove a formidable "king-maker" at that convention.

The retirement of Dewey from the governor's race this Fall left the New York political situation in a confused state. The Democrats have been talking about nominating young Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. "against Dewey." With Dewey out of it, young Roosevelt's chances of nomination may have been deflated.

On the other hand, Rep. Vito Marcantonio, head of the American Labor Party, has yet to announce his party's plans for the governor's race. He may have an announcement this week.

In the past, the Democrats have required the help of the American Labor Party to win the governorship of New York.

They lost it twice to Dewey when the ALP entered its own candidate against both major parties. This year, Marcantonio has indicated the ALP would do the same thing again.

Cabbie Held In Slaying

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, June 19—George Doty, 32-year-old Belaire cab driver, undergoes a lie detector test today in the bludgeoning slaying of 19-year-old Alma Montag.

The dead girl's body was found Saturday morning lying in a field between St. Clairsville and Neffs. Doty was arrested a

CHIANG'S LAST STAND

Nationalist Navy Ready To Block Red Landings

KAOHSIUNG, Formosa, June 19—The Chinese navy is confident it can keep shipping out of Shanghai even though it has lost its main blockade bases in the Chusan Islands.

The navy will continue to keep its biggest ships—destroyers and destroyer escorts—off the mouth of the Yangtze and will increase mining operations to offset any loss of effectiveness that may result from the evacuation of the Chusans.

Smaller vessels, such as gunboats, will continue patrols to keep shipping out of Amoy, Foochow and other ports south of Shanghai so that the Communists will not be able to break through the blockade which has hurt them so much during the last year.

Rear Admiral John Ma, chief-of-staff of the Nationalist navy, explained:

"Loss of the bases in the Chu-

sans means we will have to send our ships longer distances to close Shanghai to shipping, but that should not reduce our effectiveness.

"Our orders are to keep the Yangtze closed. We will do everything possible to comply. It is quite likely we will increase our mining operations."

Ma said the main job of the navy right now is to keep the mainland ports closed, protect troops on Quemoy and the few other islands where Nationalist garrisons still remain, patrol the Formosan Straits, train commando units for hit-and-run raids on the mainland and develop tactics to meet the anticipated Communist attack by several thousand junks.

"THE COMMUNISTS," Ma said, "can get together a few thousand junks easily."

"I disagree with those who say the Communists don't have the necessary equipment and shipping to try to invade Formosa. They have merchantmen, motor boats and also have put motors in many junks."

"They could use these junks in place of regular amphibious assault craft."

"Right now our naval headquarters is studying new tactics to fight great masses of junks. We will have to develop new tactics if we are to have success in combatting several thousand of them."

"Each junk can carry about 40 soldiers. With motors, the junks could cross the straits in seven to 10 hours at the narrowest point. That is the 80-mile stretch between Foochow and Tamsui, on our northern beach."

The navy is concerned, too, about possible Russian aid to the Communist navy.

Ma said submarines have been sighted, but not identified, off the east coast of Formosa twice. There is no naval base in the area in which the subs were sighted, Ma said, but the subs surfaced on a well-traveled shipping lane.

Top GOPsters Not Sure About 'McCarthyism'

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 19—Leading Republican governors today are on both sides of the question of whether the "rough 'em up" McCarthy technique is the right way to fight Communism.

The issue came up at the annual governors' conference.

Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania took polite verbal pokes at the methods used by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., in his sweeping charges of Communist infiltration in government.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of

New York, on his way out of political office at least for the foreseeable future, told reporters his reaction to "McCarthyism" was "mixed."

But there were indications that the defeated presidential candidate would wink at the Wisconsin senator's methods if it produced results.

The three top-ranking Republicans are among the more than 40 governors attending the 42nd annual conference at this lush mountain resort.

Business sessions got underway today with panel discussions of state government reorganization and water resources. Gov. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican, welcomed the members as chairman of the conference. Gov. Okey L. Patteson of West Virginia did the honors as host.

Dewey, 48, Seen Claiming Title As New GOP 'Elder Statesman'

WASHINGTON, June 19—National Observers today expect 48-year-old Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to seek the role of GOP "elder statesman" in order to have a hand in naming the Republican presidential nominee in 1952.

Dewey's Saturday announcement that he would not seek reelection as governor of New York was coupled with a declaration that he will "remain active in public affairs."

Great significance is attached to the fact that his two staunchest supporters immediately announced for the nomination of Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, 70, for the governorship. This was taken to indicate Dewey intends to remain as titular leader of the Republican Party in New York as well as in the nation.

Dewey's hand-picked state chairman, Rep. William L. Pfeiffer, will manage Hanley's campaign for nomination and election. Dewey's personal choice for GOP national committeeman, J. Russell Sprague, also endorsed Hanley. It looks as though Dewey hopes to control the powerful New York delegation to the GOP presidential convention in 1952.

WITH THE NEW York delegates behind him, Dewey could prove a formidable "king-maker" at that convention.

The retirement of Dewey from the governor's race this Fall left the New York political situation in a confused state. The Democrats have been talking about nominating young Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. "against Dewey."

With Dewey out of it, young Roosevelt's chances of nomination may have been deflated.

On the other hand, Rep. Vito Marcantonio, head of the American Labor Party, has yet to announce his party's plans for the governor's race. He may have an announcement this week.

In the past, the Democrats have required the help of the American Labor Party to win the governorship of New York.

They lost it twice to Dewey when the ALP entered its own candidate against both major parties. This year, Marcantonio has indicated the ALP would do the same thing again.

Cabbie Held In Slaying

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, June 19—George Doty, 32-year-old Bellaire cab driver, undergoes a lie detector test today in the bludgeoning slaying of 19-year-old Alma Montag.

The dead girl's body was found Saturday morning lying in a field between St. Clairsville and Neffs. Doty was arrested a short while later in connection with the crime.

According to Dr. Richard Niple, acting Belmont County coroner, Miss Montag apparently died while resisting an attempted criminal assault. Her partially nude body was battered almost beyond recognition.

Larry Best Attending Convention

6,500 On Hand For Rotary Meet

Larry A. Best, president-elect of Circleville Rotary Club was among the 6,500 delegates who have assembled in Detroit for the 41st annual convention of Rotary International.

Best, who will take over the reins of the local service club next month, was accompanied to the Motor City by Mrs. Best. They plan to return Thursday.

Opening the convention program Sunday evening, the president of Rotary International, Dr. Percy Hodgson of Pawtucket, R. I., declared that the real need of the world today is a great campaign of practical education in the field of international cooperation.

Reporting on his travels, covering more than 200,000 miles in 79 countries during the last year, he asserted that in all those countries where there are Rotary Clubs, the people are united in their desire for peace.

Keynote of this five-day gathering of business and professional executives, who represent 7,100 Rotary Clubs in 83 countries, will be the internationality of the Rotary organization.

THROUGHOUT the convention program, emphasis will be given to the opportunities which Rotarians have, in all parts of the world, to work for the achievement of one of the principal goals of Rotary International—the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace.

The convention program includes addresses by outstanding speakers, discussion forums, the enactment of legislation, election of officers and special entertainment features. Rotarians will also meet by vocational groups to study the common problems of their various businesses and professions throughout the world.

Among the speakers scheduled to address the convention are Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, president of the United Nations General Assembly; U. S. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath; W. Walter Williams, chairman of the Committee for Economic Development; and Edgar A. Guest, famed Detroit poet.

Rhode Island Solons Fumble

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 19—Rhode Island cities and towns today are without power to:

Hold property, borrow money, elect officials, appropriate money or perform several other essential functions.

The reason is that the general assembly, in passing a uniform motor vehicle code, intended to repeal certain sections of the laws dealing with autos. Instead the assembly by mistake repealed two entire chapters dealing with the powers of municipalities.

The assembly has adjourned, but Gov. John O. Pastore said he will call a special session to correct the mistake.

CAMBRIDGE, June 19—Robert P. Murphy, director of training at Cambridge state hospital, today is the new superintendent of Guernsey County schools. Succeeding Charles E. Knowles, he was given a two-year contract.

Some Southwest Areas Fear New 'Black Blizzard'

DALLAS, Tex., June 19—A potential Dust Bowl is threatening some areas in the Southwest, but experts hope a repetition of the devastating "black blizzard" of the 1930s will be averted.

A survey shows danger is mainly in Southeastern Colorado and Eastern New Mexico, but does not extend at this time to Western Kansas, the western portion of Oklahoma or the Texas Panhandle.

Nevertheless, the experts say anything can happen. They add: "Optimism today can be changed to extreme pessimism in a short time by the weather." Reports that the Texas Panhandle is facing a threat of another "duster" are causing belly-laughs among the experts and people living there.

From Amarillo comes this report from one veteran observer: "The territory which was worn threadbare in the 30s by constant winds over powder-dry land has had another drought, but one recently broken by Spring rains."

A different story arrives from Southeastern Colorado. Farmers there are worried. The survey shows they fear the weather cycle, after a dozen years of ample moisture, has rolled around to a period of drought. They say: "Perhaps Dust Bowl days are coming again. We hope not."

Change In Luck Due 'Lucky J'

WASHINGTON, June 19—Washington's cops are keeping a watchful eye on fire alarm boxes today in the hope of making "Lucky J."

Firemen responded to a box alarm only to find a note pinned to the box. The note said: "To the firemen."

"Ha, ha, ha. So you think there is a fire, but there isn't any. You will hear from me again, Lucky J."

"I hate you and the cops, so go to—"

The cops, who have had some experience with juvenile minds, are hoping to change Lucky J's luck.

Farmers Urged To Feed Milk

WASHINGTON, June 19—Agriculture Department researchers, feverishly looking for something to do with the huge 1950 milk production, are publicizing an idea of theirs.

They say that more farmers ought to feed milk to surplus bull calves and veal them at three to four months. Many farmers do just that, the researchers say, but it presents an opportunity for more farmers to make more money from their milk.

Larry Best Attending Convention

6,500 On Hand For Rotary Meet

Larry A. Best, president-elect of Circleville Rotary Club was among the 6,500 delegates who have assembled in Detroit for the 41st annual convention of Rotary International.

Best, who will take over the reins of the local service club next month, was accompanied to the Motor City by Mrs. Best. They plan to return Thursday.

Opening the convention program Sunday evening, the president of Rotary International, Dr. Percy Hodgson of Pawtucket, R. I., declared that the real need of the world today is a great campaign of practical education in the field of international cooperation.

Reporting on his travels, covering more than 200,000 miles in 79 countries during the last year, he asserted that in all those countries where there are Rotary Clubs, the people are united in their desire for peace.

Keynote of this five-day gathering of business and professional executives, who represent 7,100 Rotary Clubs in 83 countries, will be the internationality of the Rotary organization.

THROUGHOUT the convention program, emphasis will be given to the opportunities which Rotarians have, in all parts of the world, to work for the achievement of one of the principal goals of Rotary International—the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace.

The convention program includes addresses by outstanding speakers, discussion forums, the enactment of legislation, election of officers and special entertainment features. Rotarians will also meet by vocational groups to study the common problems of their various businesses and professions throughout the world.

Among the speakers scheduled to address the convention are Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, president of the United Nations General Assembly; U. S. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath; W. Walter Williams, chairman of the Committee for Economic Development; and Edgar A. Guest, famed Detroit poet.

TV-Radio Programs

Programs listed in the following television log contain errors daily, the fault resting entirely with broadcasters and not with The Herald. Intent of this newspaper is to provide accurate information for subscribers, but finds this impossible so far as the three Columbus television stations are concerned. The programs printed are assembled from information sent out by the Columbus stations and are not to be regarded seriously. Complaints about inaccuracies in program listings should be made to the broadcasting stations and not to The Herald.

Some Southwest Areas Fear New 'Black Blizzard'

DALLAS, Tex., June 19—A potential Dust Bowl is threatening some areas in the Southwest, but experts hope a repetition of the devastating "black blizzard" of the 1930s will be averted.

A survey shows danger is mainly in Southeastern Colorado and Eastern New Mexico, but does not extend at this time to Western Kansas, the western portion of Oklahoma or the Texas Panhandle.

Nevertheless, the experts say anything can happen. They add: "Optimism today can be changed to extreme pessimism in a short time by the weather."

Reports that the Texas Panhandle is facing a threat of another "duster" are causing belly-laughs among the experts and people living there.

From Amarillo comes this report from one veteran observer: "The territory which was worn threadbare in the 30s by constant winds over powder-dry land has had another drought, but one recently broken by Spring rains."

A different story arrives from Southeastern Colorado. Farmers there are worried. The survey shows they fear the weather cycle, after a dozen

Bottle Blowers Open Convention

COLUMBUS, June 19—The week-long convention of the AFL Glass Bottle Blowers Association opens here today with some 450 delegates from the United States and Canada in attendance.

On the agenda are such matters as higher wages, working conditions and pensions. AFL President William Green is to address the convention at a yet unannounced date.

Other speakers will include Joseph Keenan, director of Labor's League for Political Education; Ralph Wright, assistant secretary of labor; and Matthew Woll, AFL vice-president.

Rhode Island Solons Fumble

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 19—Rhode Island cities and towns today are without power to:

Hold property, borrow money, elect officials, appropriate money or perform several other essential functions.

The reason is that the general assembly, in passing a uniform motor vehicle code, intended to repeal certain sections of the laws dealing with autos. Instead the assembly by mistake repealed two entire chapters dealing with the powers of municipalities.

The assembly has adjourned, but Gov. John O. Pastore said he will call a special session to correct the mistake.

Educator Named

CAMBRIDGE, June 19—Robert P. Murphy, director of training at Cambridge state hospital, today is the new superintendent of Guernsey County schools. Succeeding Charles E. Knowles, he was given a two-year contract.

Change In Luck Due 'Lucky J'

WASHINGTON, June 19—Washington's cops are keeping a watchful eye on fire alarm boxes today in the hope of making "Lucky J."

Firemen responded to a box alarm only to find a note pinned to the box. The note said: "To the firemen."

"Ha, ha, ha. So you think there is a fire, but there isn't any. You will hear from me again, Lucky J."

"I hate you and the cops, so go to—"

The cops, who have had some experience with juvenile minds, are hoping to change Lucky J's luck.

Farmers Urged To Feed Milk

WASHINGTON, June 19—Agriculture Department researchers, feverishly looking for something to do with the huge 1950 milk production, are publicizing an idea of theirs.

They say that more farmers ought to feed milk to surplus bull calves and veal them at three to four months. Many farmers do just that, the researchers say, but it presents an opportunity for more farmers to make more money from their milk.

TERMITES
Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled exterminators and "part time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.

Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

Sokolsky's These Days

Why should this country recognize Soviet China or agree to its admission to the United Nations? Precisely how does that serve American interests? It may be something that worries Trygve Lie of the United Nations, or it may worry Ernest Bevin, who prematurely recognized Soviet China and now dislikes answering embarrassing questions in parliament. But how would it serve the United States?

Nobody can explain how it can serve the United States, any more than anyone has explained or can explain why at Yalta, the United States endorsed the Russian provisions of the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact, which prevailed during the Stalin-Hitler Alliance.

Nobody has ever tried to show how Yalta has benefited the United States, although many have fully established that Yalta betrayed American history almost beyond repair.

Italian Due To Test LaMotta

July 12 Match Is For Title

NEW YORK, June 19—The world middleweight championship may be going for another trip across the ocean, this time as the personal property of Tiberio Mitri, the unbeaten and un-floored Italian holder of the European title.

In his only American appearance, Mitri met a none too robust foe in Dick Wagner, but he looked like a fellow who knew his way around the ring in belaboring Wagner at will.

Jake LaMotta figures to make it tougher, but he is about ready to be had and the International Boxing Club has come up with a more interesting fight by substituting Mitri than by using Rocky Graziano as challenger.

Mitri got his chance when Graziano pulled out with a bad hand and Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson turned down the crack at LaMotta.

Mitri leaped at the chance to take the fight and yesterday agreements were reached whereby LaMotta's first defense of the title he won from Marcel Cerdan a year ago will be made in Madison Square Garden July 12.

THE DATE and the site, along with the challenger, all were changed in one or two strokes of the pen, with approval of the New York Boxing Commission. Mitri cannot punch like Graziano, but he can box and fight and counts himself a lucky fellow to be thus elevated into the role of challenger after so short a stay in this country. He came over only last Spring. He might have cooled his heels for months.

He thinks he is a cinch to beat LaMotta. After he outpointed Wagner, all he talked about was a crack at the champion. He was less eager to take on Ray Robinson immediately, which makes that virtually unanimous.

There may be one catch to all this yet. LaMotta, like Robinson and Graziano, is one of the least dependable fighters in the business. He pulled out of his second bout with Cerdan, who later died in a plane crash.

However, LaMotta may show up for this one. At a $15 top price, a near capacity seems to be indicated for the international tussle for a title. LaMotta has an abiding fondness for collecting purses.

Mitri will be there for sure unless they put him in a strait-jacket the night of July 12 and tie him up somewhere. He too is a purse collector of great talent and beyond that as eager as a man can be for this crack at LaMotta's title.

Mitri has a lot of things going for him, including youth and his hunger for fame and fortune. Jake is getting along in years and must be a little sated by this time with the fighting business.

That could make a difference between the two of them, and this is not to say that Mitri will win—only that he has a good chance and it should be a good fight.

Circleville Merchants Chalk Up 9-2 Victory Over Rushville '9'

Circleville Merchants baseball team Sunday scored a lopsided 9-2 victory at Rushville to chalk its fifth win in seven Tri-County League starts to date.

The Merchants were equal in scoring with the host Rushville crew during the first four innings, Circleville scoring a single in the first inning while Rushville tied the score with a single in the fourth.

Circleville broke the deadlock in the fifth inning, however, with another single, adding two runs in the sixth and five in the eighth before Rushville could score. The host team tallied a single in the last of the eighth to finish scoring for the game.

Batterymates Pitcher Jack Hix and Catcher Warren Grover provided the hitting spark for the locals during the contest.

PITCHER HIX smashed out three safeties in four trips to the plate during the match—two triples and a single. Catcher Grover lined out three safeties in four attempts also—one double and two singles.

The locals were credited with errorless ballplaying during the game.

Reynoldsburg baseball team Sunday posted a photo-finish 5-4 victory over Ashville Reds hardballers in an extra inning Heart of Ohio League contest.

The Sunday loss, first in six starts suffered by the Reds, threw the league-leading Ashvillers into second place in the loop, a half game behind Chillicothe.

Chillicothe has completed its HOL first round with a record of six wins in seven starts, while Ashville, with a 5-1 record, is expected to play its final first round contest next Sunday against Ben Brews of Columbus.

Ashville opened scoring in Sunday's long encounter with a single in the first inning, although the Reynoldsburg aggregation knotted the score in the bottom of the same frame.

Both teams were scoreless in the second canto, while the Reds scored what appeared to be a substantial lead with a trio of runs in the third. Reynoldsburg again scored a single to halve the lead at 4-2.

The winning Reynoldsburg crew again deadlocked the score in the seventh inning of the fracas with a brace of tallies, and both teams went scoreless through the eighth and ninth to throw the game into overtime. Reynoldsburg clinched the match in the 10th canto when Whetstone of the winning club powered a home run with none out.

Line score of Ashville's first HOL loss follows:

Ashville 103 000 000 0-4 6 0

Reynoldsburg 101 000 200 1-5 9 0

Lloyds Mangrum Wins Wykagyl

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 19—Lloyd Mangrum, with no blazing Ben Hogan to stand in his way, was the Wykagyl round robin golf champion today.

The 35-year-old mustachioed veteran captured the $15,000 Wykagyl event yesterday by firing a final round of 71 that gave him a 90-hole total of 344 strokes, 16 under par, for a total of plus 37 points.

Lawson Little's final round of 70 jumped him into second place with plus 20.

Ashville Amateur Baseball Team Loses Decision

Ashville dropped a narrow 9-7 decision Saturday to Carroll's Grill in a Columbus Amateur Baseball League contest.

The Ashville amateurs tied the score at 5-5 in the fifth inning with a five-run scoring spree after the Columbus team had peppered in five runs, and loped into the lead at 7-5 with single runs in both the sixth and seventh frames.

Columbus amateurs, however, scored two runs in each the eighth and ninth innings to ice the victory while Ashville was held scoreless.

Cards Schedule Tryout Camp

COLUMBUS, June 19—The St. Louis Cardinal tryout camp to be held in Red Bird Stadium here June 26, 27 and 28 will be supervised by a hand-picked crew in Rolie Hemsley, manager of the Birds, and Scouts Buddy Lewis, Bob Kline and George Sisler Jr.

The workouts will start at 11 a. m. under the supervision of these men. Each aspirant is to bring his own glove and shoes, and uniform if possible, as the Cardinals do not furnish such equipment.

Hott-Goodchild Duo Captures Mixed Tourney

Mrs. Harold Hott and William Goodchild Sunday defeated 21 other couples in a selective ball mixed foursome golf match at Pickaway Country Club.

The couple won its victory in the match with a score of 46 strokes for the nine holes, shooting 10-over-par golf.

Second in the contest were Mrs. Dudley Carpenter and Dr. Edward Hedges, who registered a score of 47 strokes for the nine holes.

Ed Amey, pro-manager of the local course, said no booby prize was awarded during the match since rain forced some of the couples to quit without completing the round.

A ladies blind bogey is scheduled to begin at 9 a. m. Tuesday at the local course, followed by lunch at noon.

Amey said the next tournament scheduled at the club is a men's handicap contest, slated for July 4.

The feature tournament of the Summer—the club championship match—probably will be held soon after the men's handicap, Amey said.

1949 Game Kill Records Broken By Ohio Hunters

Ohio hunters in 1949 broke all game kill records for rabbit, pheasant, fox and gray squirrel, according to Clarence Francis, Pickaway County game protector.

The local conservation specialist said that a game kill survey just completed by Ohio State university shows that:

Hunters bagged 5,617,500 rabbits in 1949, an increase of 46.1 percent over 1948; 1,042,500 pheasants, an increase of 47.5 percent; 1,485,000 fox squirrel, 28.6 percent more than in 1948 and 817,500 gray squirrel, an increase of 34.2 percent.

The survey does not necessarily depict the differences in the population levels of these game species since there were some 50,000 more license holders in 1949 than 1948.

The survey was conducted according to statistical standards, tentative number of license holders selected at random from license agency sales records using post card questionnaires throughout the state.

Sixty-three percent of the 8,645 hunters who returned questionnaires hunted only in their home counties; 26 percent hunted in one county other than their home counties; eight percent hunted in two other counties; two percent in three others and seven percent in four or more counties other than their home counties.

The survey was conducted by the Ohio Wildlife Research Unit of Ohio State university under the direction of Eugene H. Dustman, unit leader. The unit is maintained jointly by the university, the Division of Wildlife, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Wildlife Management Institute.

Jerry The First Again Winner Of Golden West

Jerry The First has done it again.

The six-year-old chestnut, owned and driven by Eddie Cobb of Washington C. H., Saturday won the $50,000 Golden West Pace staged on the Santa Anita (Calif.) track.

The Saturday win was a repeat of Jerry's 1949 Golden West victory.

In Saturday's test, Patchen Axworthy, who had not been considered in contention, finished second and the California sentimental favorite, Dr. Stanton, copped third.

In his win, Cobb held Jerry The First in the two hole the first half mile, slipped to third in the backstretch.

But coming into the last turn, Jerry The First showed his stuff, overtaking the leading Dr. Stanton who then faded badly, allowing Patchen Axworthy to win place money.

Cobb's entry pocketed $20,000 of the purse, bringing his lifetime earnings up to $101,000.

Babe Is Favored To Take Tourney

DENVER, June 19 —Mildred "Babe" Didrikson Zaharias is favored to win among a field of more than 100 contestants who tee off here today in the Women's Western Open golf tournament.

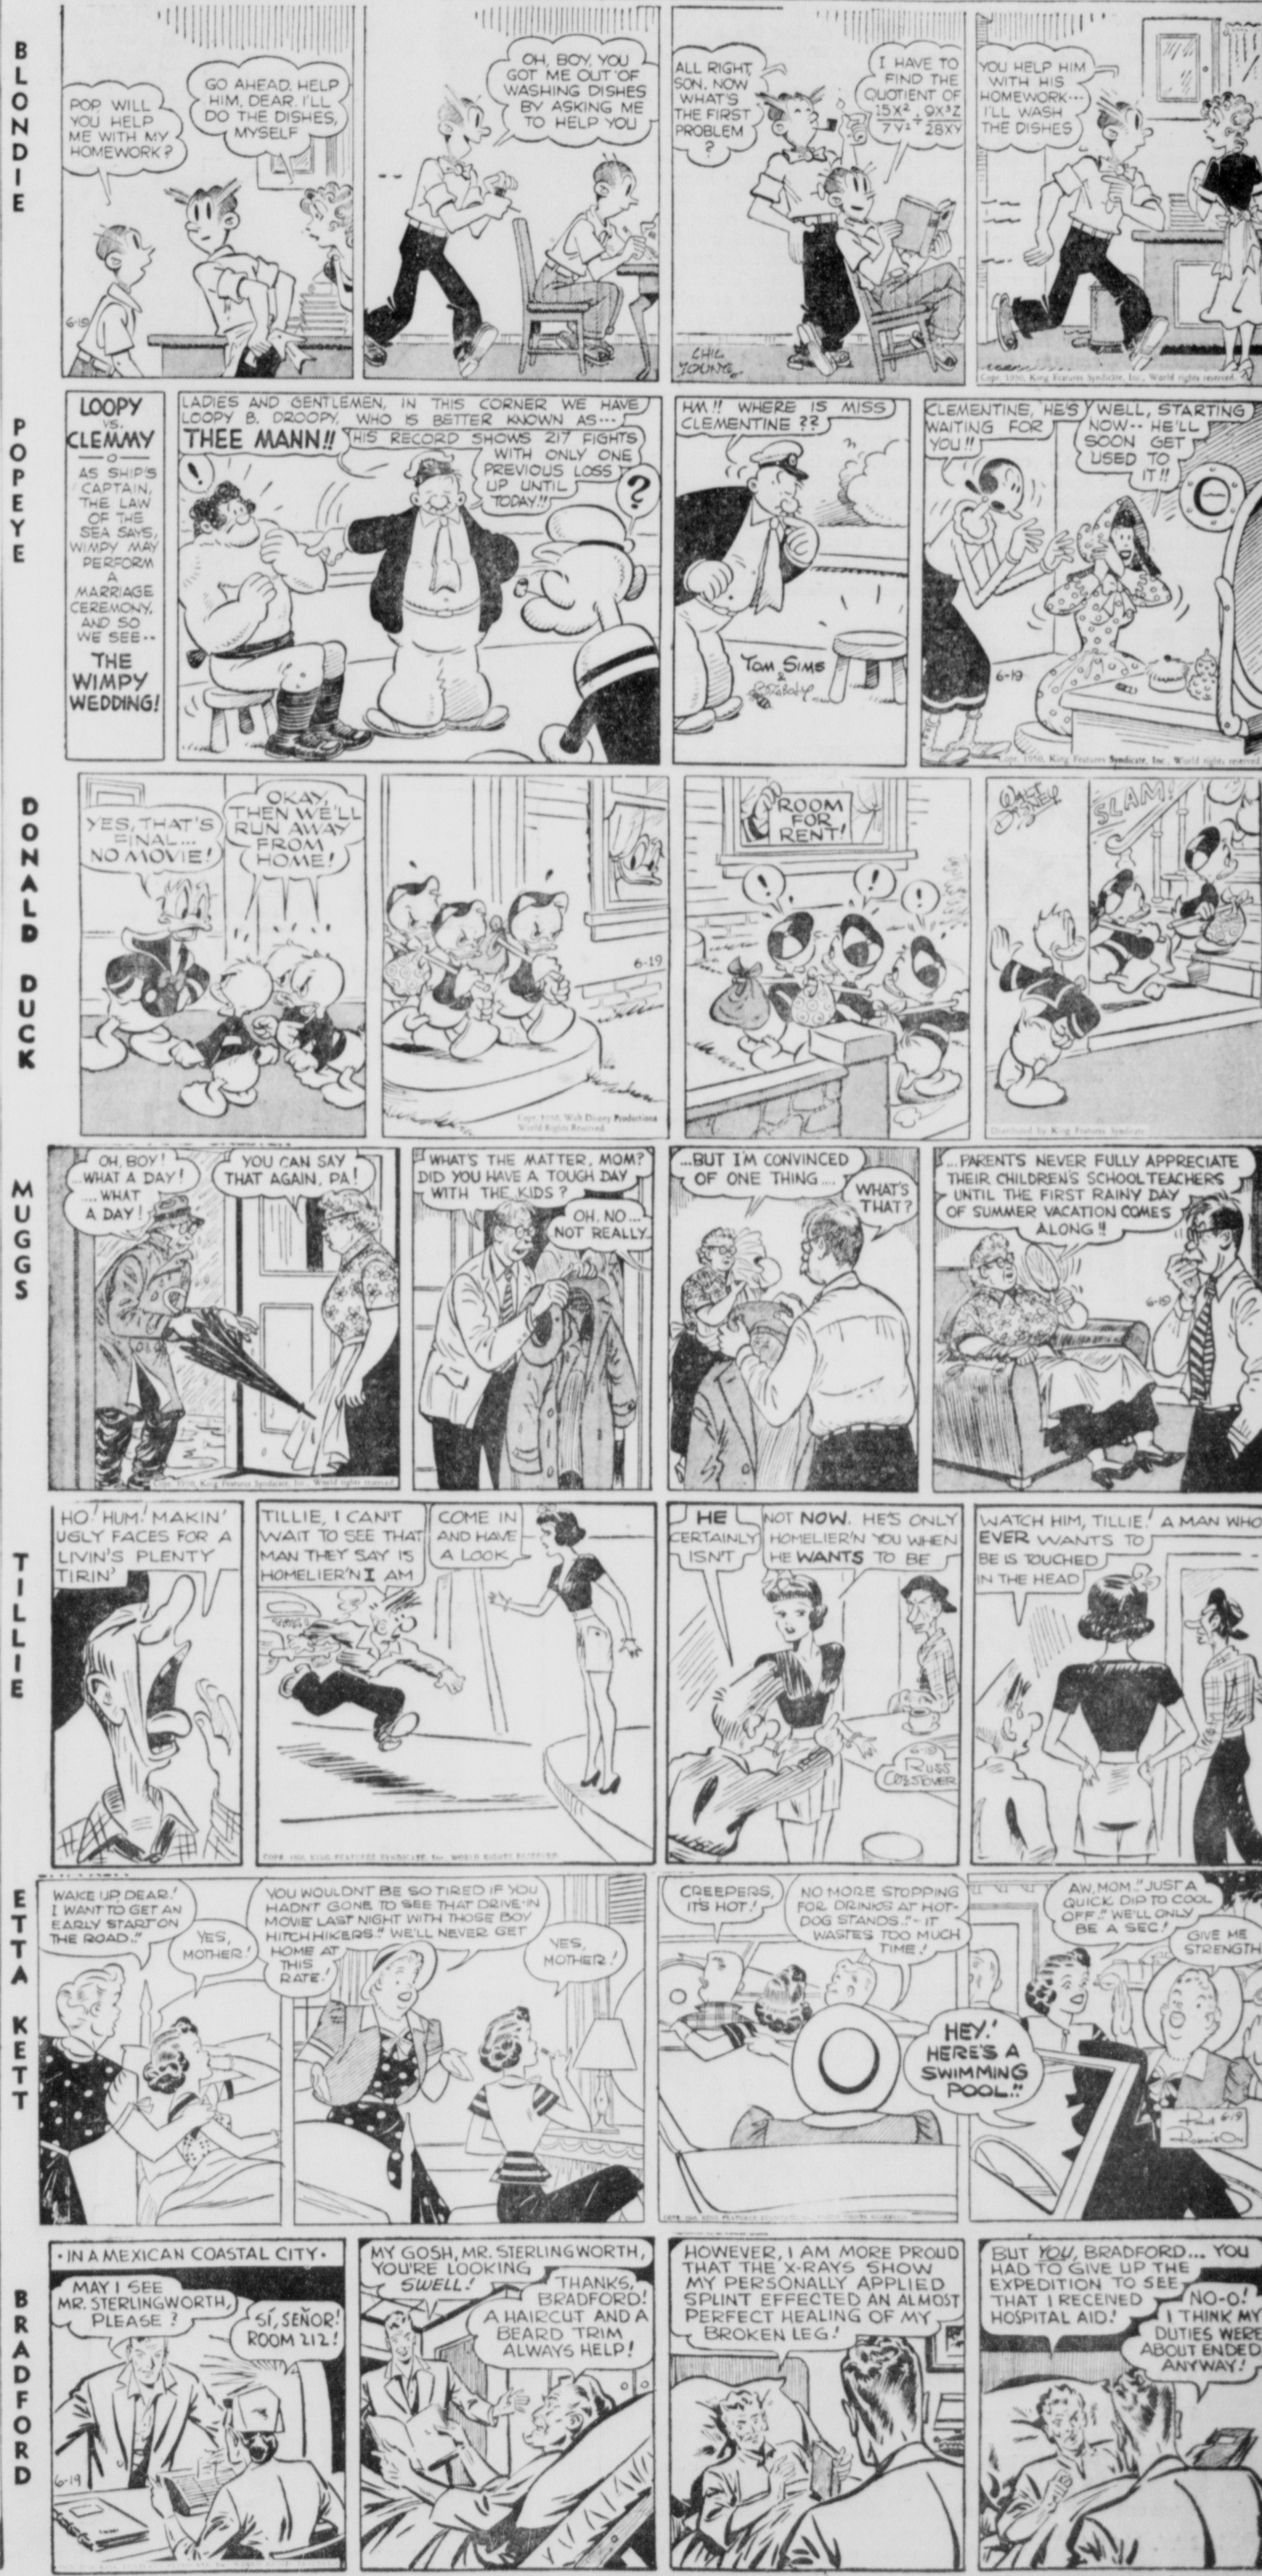

Qualifying rounds are on today's schedule, and match play gets underway tomorrow.

Among the amateur favorites are Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O., who won the 1950 eastern amateur, and Pat Devaney of Grass Ile, Mich.

In an exhibition match yesterday among the "big four" of women golfers, the Babe toured the Cherry Hills course in 69, a new course record. Playing with her were Betty Jameson, Louise Suggs and Patty Berg.

ing Patchen Axworthy to win place money.

Cobb's entry pocketed $20,000 of the purse, bringing his lifetime earnings up to $101,000.

FAITH IN NATION CITED

Mrs. Patton Dedicates
Valley Forge Bell Tower

"Reborn faith in our Democratic institutions and the American way of life is needed to check the spread of Communism in this country," Mrs. James B. Patton, president general of Daughters of the American Revolution, declared Monday at Valley Forge, Pa.

Mrs. Patton, a native of Circleville, spoke at a ceremony commemorating the cornerstone of the Memorial Bell Tower. The tower to be built by DAR funds will house the National Carillon of 49 bells at Valley Forge. It will stand beside the stately Washington Memorial Chapel.

Declaring the Memorial Bell Tower will be a lasting monument to faith in America, Mrs. Patton said:

"If America is to lead the way for Democratic nations in upholding freedom and liberty, it must demonstrate its strong faith in Democracy. We cannot successfully meet a Cold War if we have another Cold War going on within our own United States. Our faith must be strong. It must be instilled into the hearts of our young Americans by patriotic education. We must show others in our daily lives that we believe in America and have confidence in our form of government. Patriotism does not have to be kept in a closet and brought out only on the Fourth of July."

THE ORIGINAL cornerstone for the tower was laid by Mrs. William H. Pouch of New York City, then president general, in 1944. In Monday's ceremony an additional sealed box containing added records was placed beside the first box and the stone was sealed by Mrs. Pouch and Mrs. Patton.

A large group of DAR officers attended the ceremony. A special delegation came from Washington headquarters. The first part of the exercises was held in the Washington Memorial Chapel where John Robbins Hart, rector of the chapel, and Mrs. Thomas Henry Lee of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania state regent, gave welcoming addresses. The response was by Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex of Wichita, Kan., first vice-president general.

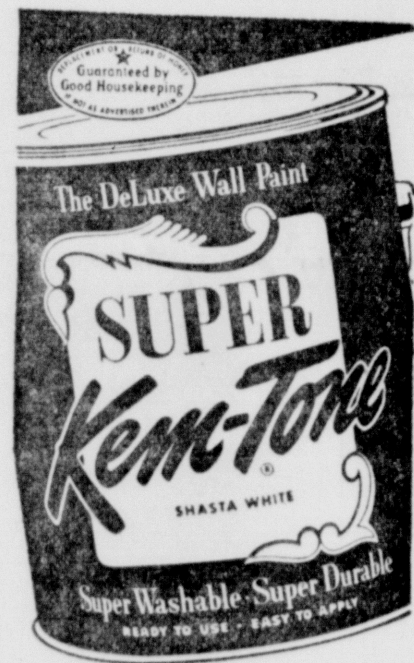

The project to build the Memorial Bell Tower was conceived during the administration of Mrs. Pouch and Monday she told how the idea developed into a national project.

The great carillon of the chapel has been housed in a wooden structure which has been deemed to be unsafe. The Memorial Bell Tower will be constructed of steel and stone and will rise to a height of 95 feet. Among its memorials will be a honor roll containing the names of soldiers of the Revolutionary War and of World War I and World War II. Pointing out that the bells of the carillon will ring out at Valley Forge every day in the year, Mrs. Patton added:

"The bells in the tower will proclaim faith in America. Erection of this tower shows our faith in America, an enduring faith that what our forefathers won for liberty loving people will be preserved."
